England's Latest Look Out, Politicians
Mr. Stone's Enemies
F. B. Kellogg, an American

Current Events
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.

YOU REMEMBER the recent destruction of the big battleship Washington, not quite finished. This country, having spent about thirty million dollars on that battleship, took it out to sea and sank it to oblige our dear friends in Europe.

They didn't want us to have too many ships, especially as they couldn't compete with us. Our kindergarten statesmen deserved and junked one hundred millions worth of new fighting ship material.

Europe and Asia junked a few aircraft out of date.

NOW READ of two battleships about to be launched by England.

A British expert says of them that they will "put all existing battleships back in the Victorian era."

Those ships, built without funnels, and gigantic guns built forward, are useful in a double way.

The broad, long decks, clear of turrets and superstructure, supply a launching and landing place for flying ships. Carried on the deck they can leave the "mother" battleship and destroy enemy ships hundreds of miles out of gunfire and torpedo range.

THIS GREAT battleship will be able out to sea, carrying her deadly battle planes with her, as the old noblemen rode out with the hawk on his wrist, ready to be released at the sight of the prey.

ENGLAND IS building fifty squadrons of flying battleships and is about to launch the two most powerful fighting ships in the world, to act as battleship carriers. And our miserably impotent politicians destroy the broad ships we have, provide a fighting air ships and talk their provincial platitudes about peace. It would be laughable if it were not so very serious.

LET THOSE responsible, if the thousands of flying ships that Japan is turning out, at the rate of five hundred a month, ever come this way and find us unprepared. There would be trouble then for some politicians, and serious trouble.

FURTHER INFORMATION would be welcome concerning the motives of individuals that oppose the President's appointment of Attorney General Stone to the Supreme Bench.

What disturbs those that oppose the nomination?

How much of the opposition is due to the fact that, as soon as he was appointed Mr. Stone proceeded to select competent lawyers, such as Mr. Jerome Michael, of Keuta, and Kirchway, in New York City, to dig into the war frauds, instead of letting the grafters rest in peace?

AND HOW MUCH of the opposition is due to Attorney General Stone's attitude toward the combination of harvester manufacturers and other concerns that do not like to be disturbed?

Mr. Stone has shown himself energetic, earnest and highly capable as an attorney general, faithfully representing his client, the public. The citizens will regret that Mr. Stone leaves the Attorney General's office, and will welcome his appointment to the Supreme Bench.

CONCERNING THE appointment of Frank B. Kellogg, chosen by the President to take Mr. Hughes' place, there will be only approval. When the President sent Mr. Kellogg to the Court of St. James, he sent a genuine American whose mind is in the country and whose ideas are those of the United States. He will be an American Secretary of State, not, as we have occasionally had during past administration, an imitation British Secretary of State. If some old-fashioned American of the type of Jackson or Lincoln returned and saw Mr. Kellogg sitting at

GOV. DAVIS AND SON ARRESTED

$150,000 LIQUOR THEFT IN GUARDED DISTILLERY

WARRANT IS ISSUED FOR GOV. DAVIS

Sheriff to Ride in Inaugural Parade to Arrest Retiring Executive

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 12 (Universal).—Governor Davis and his son are to be arrested after the close of the inaugural ceremonies of his successor today, according to a statement made by Tinkham Veale, county attorney.

The warrants were issued this morning and the deputies who will serve them will ride in the inaugural parade. These arrangements, it was stated, were made out of courtesy to the incoming Governor, Benjamin S. Paulen.

"They are making a big mistake and a mighty bad move."

This was the only comment today of Governor Davis, regarding the indictments against him.

Governor Davis was considered as a nominee for vice-president at the last Democratic convention.

Governor Davis and his son are accused of accepting a bribe to pardon Fred W. Pollman, Kansas banker.

Even if the arrest of the Governor does not come before the inaugural the chief executive will go through the ceremonies of the day with the law's threatening shadow hanging over him.

Whether or not the Governor will go through with the day's program after warrant has been served on him is a topic of much conjecture here. It was generally believed that he would. His attitude so far has been to insist that the charges are a "frame-up" and something to be ignored.

The Davis family is keeping close to the executive mansion. The son, Russell, who is charged with having negotiated the sale of the pardon to Fred W. Pollman, La Cygne, Kansas, banker, for $1,250, would add nothing to his first statement in which he took the entire blame for the transaction, declaring, however, that he had been led into a trap by Pollman. He implored his father of any connection with the deal.

The arrest on a State warrant will mark only the beginning of the prosecution of the Governor on charges of bribery, it was indicated here today. Early action by the State Legislature, which convenes Thursday, also is expected.

HARVARD IS UNDECIDED ON COACH

Report of Daly's Selection and Fisher's Resignation Is Denied by Moore

The Harvard football coaching situation is still "up in the air."

While a report was going the rounds today to the effect that Charlie Daly, former Army coach, at one time an assistant to the late Percy D. Haughton at Cambridge and a Crimson alumni, had been selected to head coach of the Harvard squad, Major Fred W. Moore, chairman of the Harvard A. A., and Bob Fisher, coach for the past six years, denied any knowledge of such an appointment.

"No appointment has been made," said Moore today. "We are still considering many names."

When he was asked if the committee was considering Bob Fisher he answered he "would rather not say," creating the impression that Fisher will not return to Harvard.

Fisher declared today that he had not heard of the appointment of Daly. He further stated that he had not resigned, as report had it.

GREATEST HARVARD STAR.

"How can I resign?" he reutered. "I am working on a year-to-year basis at Harvard and until I am appointed I cannot resign."

The report about Daly has it that he will be offered a salary of $10,000 a year and that Leo Leary, Charlie Brickley and Charlie Brickley, all Crimson heroes of the past, will be his assistants.

Daly, in his playing days was one of the outstanding football men of the country. He played quarterback at Harvard in 1898, 1899 and 1900 and led the varsity team in his senior year.

He called the signals on the team of 1898, captained by Dibler, which beat Yale 17 to 0.

Daly entered West Point in 1901, after graduating from Harvard, and played on the Army team from then until 1905.

He became assistant to Haughton at Harvard in 1908 and in 1913 was appointed head coach at West Point. He remained there until 1922.

Leo Leary is also a Haughton man, having served under that men-

FIVE MILLION LOST IN LONDON FOG

London, Jan. 12 (I.N.S.)—The city life of London was almost wholly disorganized today as the result of a thirty-six-hour fog. Economic losses are estimated to have reached $5,000,000. One person is dead, scores were injured and criminal activity has greatly increased.

$100,000,000 LOAN FOR IRISH FREE STATE

Dublin, Jan. 12 (I.N.S.)—New York bankers will be asked to assist the Irish Free State to float a loan of $100,000,000. The loan would bear interest at 5 per cent.

Unlike the $50,000,000 loan floated last year, this issue would be placed abroad.

GIRL KISSES PROVOST, VANISHES

Body of Noted Boston Architect Found in Greenwich Village Room

The body of Edmond Rene Provost, talented young architect and patron of the arts, is on its way back to Boston, while New York's Greenwich Village wonders.

Provost, scion of a family long prominent in the exclusive social circles of the Hub, died of accidental gas poisoning in his bachelor apartments in Greenwich Village.

It was the sudden appearance of a beautiful girl at the bedside of the dying Boston man, however, that stirred the interes of "The Village."

KISSES DEAD MAN'S LIPS.

Shortly after Provost was found unconscious on his bed, by his landlady, Celestine Dryjaki, the unknown girl forced her way into the place.

Dropping on her knees by the side of the bed, she sobbed hysterically as she kissed the inanimate features of the architect. The girl interfered with physicians who were using a pulmotor and other means of resuscitation in a vain endeavor to save young Provost's life.

When the doctors pronounced the man dead, the unidentified girl disappeared and nothing has since been heard of her.

Tenants of the apartment house heard Provost enter his room. Some hours later the landlady detected the odor of gas in the house and this was finally traced to Provost's apartment, where a small gas stove was found with burners open.

MADE NAME IN ART.

Provost, born in Montreal in 1896, was brought to Boston by his parents when a year old. He was educated in the public schools and studied architecture under the leading teachers in Boston.

Possessed of a fine voice, he stud-

BOY, 14, CONVICTED OF SLAYING GRANDMOTHER

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 12.—Fourteen-year-old William C. Cavalier was found guilty of murder in the first degree for killing his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Cavalier, sixty-two years old, last July. The jury had deliberated nearly twenty-four hours.

Cavalier, one of the youngest defendants ever convicted of first degree murder in the history of the State courts, was remanded to prison to await disposition of an application for a new trial. He showed no emotion when the verdict was delivered.

Tight Jackets for Men Decreed by Edict of Designers

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Funny little coats will be worn by men next season, according to an edict of the International Association of Clothing Designers. The designers have just closed a meeting in Chicago.

Here are some of the new styles:

Coats—Little more than jackets in size, something like those worn in "days of the 'bicycle craze."

Trousers—Wide and loose-fitting.

Overcoats — Close-fitting; ulsters passe.

Black shoes are "coming back."

HUSBAND GONE A WEEK; FEAR FOUL PLAY

Fears of foul play were expressed by Mrs. Anna C. Pearson of No. 17 Regent street, Roxbury, today in appealing for aid in finding her husband, Harry C. Pearson.

Mrs. Pearson, who is ill bed on the verge of a collapse, is convinced that her husband, missing since last Tuesday, has either been murdered or has met death in some other way.

Pearson is a jobbing contractor, who has been out of work for some time, and has been in a highly nervous condition, according to his wife.

Last Tuesday, she says, her husband showed signs of extreme nervousness and after saying a "lot of wild things," put on his overcoat and walked out of the house. Mrs. Pearson had just sent for a doctor for treatment for herself.

"I fear that my husband may have met with foul play or may have met death in some way," said the woman today. "He has had these peculiar nervous disorders before. Last September, he left home the same way, but he came back.

"He is a jobbing contractor, and when he went away last Fall his business fell off and he has not been working since. He has been in a highly nervous condition for weeks.

"I have telephoned his relatives and they have not seen him. He did not have a dollar in his pocket when he went. And could not even pay carfare to any place, so I can't imagine what has happened to him."

Pearson is forty-two years old, five feet, nine inches tall, wore a brown pencilled suit, brown overcoat, brown shoes and grey velour hat.

LOADED ON TRUCK IN BOSTON

Fifty Barrels of Rum, Several Years Old, Taken With Watchmen Nearby

One of the biggest prohibition scandals in recent years was revealed today when it was learned that about fifty barrels of genuine, old-time aged in bond rum had been stolen from the Nahum-Chapin Distillery at No. 60 Water street, Charlestown.

While officials would make no statements it was learned that the rum, estimated to be worth about $150,000 at prevailing prices, if not more, was rolled out under the noses of four guards.

Two of these were watchmen employed by the distillery and the others were representatives of the Internal Revenue Department. The distillery was supposed to be under guard day and night.

LOADED IN TRUCK.

The robbery was accomplished by an organized gang, provided with a truck, and it is yet to be disclosed how they were able to roll out the barrels, load them and get away without attracting the attention of the guards.

A grand jury investigation will be started as soon as the investigators finish their work, and it is expected that certain prominent persons will be involved.

The distillery ceased the making of rum in 1918, so that the newest of its product in storage there is at least six years old, and a considerable quantity of much more ancient vintage. Guaranteed rum of that age should be worth whatever a bootlegger can get for it.

2,000 BARRELS LEFT.

The distillery has been disposing of its stock slowly by export, to druggists and through government withdrawals and it is estimated that there are about 2,000 barrels left.

The internal revenue guards were kept on duty at the distillery after prohibition went into effect. They were on duty in accordance with the government custom of placing men in bonded warehouses to see that no liquor was withdrawn until the stipulated time.

GOVERNOR DAVIS OF KANSAS ARRESTED

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Gov. Jonathan M. Davis appeared in court today to answer warrants sworn out by County Attorney Tinkham Veale, charging him and his son, Russell, with accepting a bribe. The bond in each defendant was set at $1,000 and a hearing was set for Jan. 23. At the time the warrants were served Gov. Davis had not decided whether he would attend today's inaugural ceremonies for his successor.

pealing of sentences by our Superior Courts."

Superintendent Forrave also charged that one district judge in Greater Boston told the police and vice squad of his city not to attempt to enforce the Baby Volstead Act until they saw how it worked out in other places.

PRAISES GOODWIN.

"Registrar Goodwin hit the nail on the head regarding law enforcement in general," Mr. Peerpave declared, "when he said, 'the time has come to stop nol-prossing and filing of cases of persistent offenders, to stop placing them on probation and suspending sentences.'

"It is about time for the Parole Board to stop paroling all cases except those of first offenders.

"After a careful study of District and Superior Court records, it is my firm conviction that one of the greatest obstacles in the way of really reducing crime is the softpedalling of sentences by our Superior Courts.

"In many instances the District Court judge, no doubt because he is more susceptible to local public opinion, does hand the criminals sentences that punish, only to have the cases appealed and the Superior Court reduce the penalty by one, half, two-thirds or entirely.

"During the period of January 1 to October 1, 1924, in eleven appeal cases from the Somerville District Court where the penalties had aggregated sentences of four years and ten months and $300 in fines, when these eleven cases were disposed of in the Superior Court the total of the penalties had been reduced to seven months in jail, and $1,100 in fines.

CITES CASES.

"In one case, where the criminal had been sentenced to a year, he was given six months by the Superior Court. In another case, where one had been sentenced to a year, he was given a $100 fine by the Superior Court.

"In another case, where one had been sentenced for a year, he was given a $200 fine by the Superior Court, and in two cases where the District Court had handed out a six months' jail sentence, the Superior Court reduced the same to $100 fine, and so on.

"Those in power to fix sentences are solely responsible in this matter.

"However, all District Courts are not sluffing in the enforcement of the law. One District judge in Greater Boston, about the time the Baby Volstead act went into effect, December 5, had a conference with the chief of police of that city and then later with the vice squad of the city and told them separately that they should not attempt to enforce this new law, but carry on as they had in the past until they saw how it worked out in some other places.

"This is surely encouraging to law enforcement coming from a District Judge and the judge before whom these police officers would have to bring the cases.

"We must, if criminals are to be deterred, have penalties that punish. We must get away from too much love and soft-heartedness and go back to the woodshed method."

The peppery registrar, in his latest attack on the law enforcement agencies of the State openly intimates that those in authority are deliberately protecting a notorious band of automobile thieves.

Judge Walsh of the Essex County court is attacked by Goodwin, while the courts of Suffolk County are flayed for sending only three men to jail in cases involving the thefts of automobiles in the county, while $90 machines were stolen.

"I am satisfied someone is protecting these men," declares the registrar.

Registrar Goodwin made his latest attack on the enforcement agencies after he personally suspended the license of David Namet, aged twenty-eight, of Cross street, Chelsea, and Charles Friedman, aged twenty-eight, of No. 23 Dixwell street, Roxbury.

Namet is referred to by the registrar as the "King of the Automobile Thieves," and Charles Friedman and his brother Percy are referred to as the "able henchmen of the king thief."

When Namet was arrested by State police over a year ago, it was declared that he and his gang were stealing automobiles at the rate of every week, and already had stolen over 1,600 machines.

The three members of the band of alleged thieves are under indictment for larceny of automobiles, conspiracy and receiving stolen automobiles.

The court records, according to Registrar Goodwin, show that the men have been successful in keeping out of jail, although evidence of their guilt has been presented in provision.

In connection with his action in suspending the licenses of the three men, Registrar Goodwin said:

"I am satisfied that someone is protecting these three men and as a result of that protection, they are permitted to remain at large and prey upon the public.

"It is about time something should be done to stop the tremendous increase in the stealing of automobiles, and I am satisfied if these three men are put in jail, where they ought to be, respectable citizens can leave their automobiles on the streets of Boston and expect to find them when they get back.

SAYS THIEVES NOT PUNISHED.

"I hope this statement will arouse a public opinion that will make the district attorneys and the courts send the crooks and thieves who are now preying upon the public, stealing property and shooting innocent men, into the jails that are now half empty as the result of unexplainable leniency by the courts.

"It may be interesting to know that in Suffolk County last year, although there were over 900 automobiles stolen, only three men were sent to the Reformatory and two to the House of Correction, while two were sent to the Lyman School for Boys.

"The time has come to stop nol prossing and filing cases of persistent offenders; to stop placing them on probation and suspending the sentence, and it is about time for the Parole Board to stop paroling all cases except those of first offenders."

David Namet's record shows, says Registrar Goodwin, that he has been taken before various courts twenty-seven times. Four cases were filed. He was fined thirteen times and appealed five times. Five cases were nol prossed in Superior Court, Suffolk County. One case was dismissed. He was sentenced to terms in the house of correction three times and each time appealed. He was once placed on probation. He has never served a sentence in any penal institution.

man" American, after her father, Dr. Irving Perry Dodge, head of the Commonwealth Hospital, at risk of life and limb, chased a titled Frenchman back across the seas when he came to the Hub with the expressed purpose of winning Virginia's hand, heart—and fortune.

Announcement has just been made that the capricious Back Bay girl is the wife of George Ransom Taylor, graduate of Technology and now employed as a chemist in Baltimore, Md.

The love affairs of Miss Dodge gained great prominence last January, when the Count D'Ornando, scion of royalty, arrived in Boston and installed himself at the Copley Plaza.

The entertained Miss Dodge in Paris—now she will entertain me here," the count announced.

Miss Dodge did her best. She arranged for her titled woer to escort a girl friend to an exclusive dance, while she, dressed in male attire, accompanied a Beacon Hill cliffs girl to the affair.

TOLD TO GO HOME.

It was at this dance that the Harvard boys gathered around her and sang the ditty warning the fair "Virginia" to show up her speed.

A short time later, Papa Dodge, who objected strenuously to the presence of the Frenchman about the household, intimated to the count that he would do well to return to La Belle France.

The count countered with a challenge to a duel.

Dr. Dodge is long on medicine and surgery but rather short on the gentle sword practice.

"I'll duel him in the good, old American way—with my fists," was the counter proposition of the doctor.

Subsequently, Count D'Ornando faded from the picture.

Last July, just five months after the spurned French nobleman started back to his native Paris, the heart he had crossed the ocean to win was mended several inches.

For just as soon as he had completed his classes at M. I. T. and Miss Dodge had received her Bachelor degree, the young couple slipped off to New York and were quietly married in St. Luke's Church, July 27, 1924.

It was the rector of the church, the Rev. Mr. Taylor—incidentally not related to the bridegroom or the former President—who performed the ceremony.

GIVEN BLESSING.

Dr. Dodge, father of Virginia, had just returned from a visit to the home of his daughter and her husband at Washington Heights, Baltimore ,Md. There the young bride is studying for a master's degree, at Johns Hopkins University, while the bridegroom is starting out in his chosen field of chemistry as a tester in the laboratory of a Baltimore manufacturing plant.

Parental blessing was administered to the eloping couple. "He's really a wonderful boy, and will make his mark in the world," was the report of Dr. Dodge in sizing up his son-in-law. "They are very happy, living in a suburb of Baltimore while pursuing their vocations, but I hope they will return to Boston and make their permanent home here near us. With her is Great Dane, her huge German mastiff, arrested thirty-eight times last year by the Boston police. The dog is still trying his capers in Baltimore."

SEEK YOUTH AS SENDER OF DEATH NOTES

"The son of a prominent Cambridge family is today being sought by the police for questioning in connection with threatening letters received recently by two prominent Cambridge women.

Death threats demanding $5,000 were sent each of the women. Police now believe that the young man aspired to a position as a detective and sent the letters hoping to get work on the case as a sleuth.

The new theory grew out of the fact that soon after Mrs. Mary F. Bright of No. 16 Hastile street, Cambridge, received a threatening letter the mail brought the business card of a detective agency. It is believed now by the police that the letters and the card were sent by a person who was seeking employment with the detective agency.

Officials of the New England Private Detectives' Association are up in arms over the intimation that private detectives sent death threat letters to two Cambridge women for the purpose of boosting business.

Jay A. Eady, who is one of the bureau's active members, and expert to find them when they get back.

Mr. Hughes, working for the public for twenty years, has sacrificed not less than six million dollars, plus interest, by doing so.

FIRE VOLLEY OF SHOTS AT STOLEN CAR

Salem, Jan. 12.—Beverly police officers today fired a volley 7 shots at a speeding automobile stolen from this city, but its occupants, who had attempted to break into a servis station, escaped.

Later the car, the property of Fred J. Norris of No. 91 North street, Salem, was found on Briggs street, this city, by Patrolmen and Flynn.

The machine was stolen while parked near a bowling alley which Mr. and Mrs. Norris were attending. Later the thieves stole registration plates numbered 21,754 from the garage of Jacob Weiner, No. 20 Bridge street.

The bandits, believed to be two in number, first were heard of in Peabody when they attempted to enter the Kingsley Service Station in Wilson square.

Frightened away, they were racing down Rantoul street, Beverly, when Patrolman John A. Terry stepped out to stop them. The driver crowded the policeman to the sidewalk and dashed on. Terry drew his revolver and fired several shots, apparently none taking effect.

A short time later Officer Walter Lee saw the car careening along near the Beverly bridge and was nearly run down. He fired a number of shots, one of which entered the rear window of the car and penetrated the windshield, passing close to the driver's head.

his desk, he would say: "I see they are still employing Americans on American jobs."

THE RESIGNATION of Secretary Hughes illustrates once more the fact that the people do not sufficiently pay for the services of able men.

It is utterly impossible for such a man as Mr. Hughes to live as he must live, and provide for his family on the salary that the people pay a cabinet officer. He has been content to remain in office, using his accumulated earnings.

But justice to his family compels him to return now to law practice, in which, entirely by his legal ability and entirely apart from any official influence —which is not always the case —Mr. Hughes is able with ease to earn thirty times what the people pay him.

Mr. Hughes, working for the public for twenty years, has sacrificed not less than six million dollars, plus interest, by doing so.

EARTHQUAKE TREMORS disturb the Japanese. An earthquake predicted last Summer for early in January was felt last Friday, two severe shocks. Mt. Aso is in eruption. The Japanese have many troubles that the brave, enterprising nation doesn't deserve.

PART OF THE trouble is in those frightfully deep "holes" in the Pacific Ocean discovered by scientists of the Japanese Navy.

The deepest of all known ocean depths, just off the coast of Japan, is so deep that the top of the highest mountain on earth would be several miles below the water, if put in that hole.

Submarine landslides, rushing down into such deep holes, might explain some earthquakes.

$40,000 IN RUM SEIZED ALONG SOUTH SHORE

Contraband alcohol and whiskey worth more than $40,000 were captured in two seizures made by the coast guard Federal officers and local police in two successful South Shore coups over the week-end.

At Weymouth the local police and Federal officers surprised seven men while unloading 2,500 gallons of alcohol from a motor boat.

The alcohol had been taken from a larger boat anchored some distance off shore, but the officers were unable to distinguish her name.

Six of the men escaped in the darkness but the seventh, Guiseppi Terrello of No. 26 Charter street, Boston, was captured. The motor boat and the alcohol were confiscated.

The Gurnet coast guard crew, under command of Boatswain's Mate Anthony Lema, seized two motor boats and $25,000 worth of Scotch whiskey in the lower Plymouth harbor. Four men were taken.

FISHING BOATS BRING IN LARGE CARGOES

There were several Sunday arrivals at the Fish Pier, most of the vessels returning from short stays at the fishing banks. The Majorie Parker brought in 3,000 pounds of haddock, 3,000 large cod, 1,000 market cod, 1,500 halibut and 1,500 cusk; Mac IV., 500 haddock, 2,000 flounders and 2,000 cod; Catherine, 40,000 pounds of mixed fish, and the Alden A. Mills, a trawler, which has been out 16 days, brought in more than 90,000 pounds of haddock, cod and other varieties.

The steam trawler Ocean arrived with 85,000 pounds of haddock and cod, putting into the pier ahead of schedule on account of an accident to one of the firemen who was slightly burned while at work. He was taken to his home in South Boston.

WEALTHY SHOE MAN SEEKS DIVORCE

Salem, Jan. 12.—In answer to a separate support suit brought by his wife, Lyndon V. Grover, wealthy Lynn shoe manufacturer, today started divorce proceedings, naming Paul A. Monte of Winthrop.

The wife, Mrs. Eleanor C. Grover, through her attorney, Earl C. Jacobs, denied the charges of unfaithfulness and declared it was one of her husband's favorite methods "of working up a scheme such as he employed in obtaining a divorce from his former wife."

Charging that her husband beat her up on Christmas Day, Mrs. Grover started separate support proceedings in the Probate Court a day or two later. She is Grover's third wife, his first having died, while he obtained a divorce from the second.

In his declaration Grover said the couple were married in Lynn Jan. 25, 1919. He charged his wife was unfaithful at Casco, Me., from July 20 to August 1 last; on the boat from New York to Boston on October 29 last, and at various dates in Lynn in October, November and December.

Gassed War Veteran, Doomed to Die, Is Penniless

CZAR'S KIN RESCUED BY YANKS

Dancer, With 5 Years to Live, Still Works for Disabled Veterans

When one is young and talented and has so much to do—and only five years in which to do it, because then one must die—it is hard to have obstructions thrust in one's way.

Since the black war clouds overhanging Europe thinned and the sun came through and the great war was ended, Mlle. Ouida Vlaitnova, blood relative of the Romanoffs, has been one of the few friends who stuck by the wounded soldiers in the vicinity of Boston.

But before that, she had done her bit in the war. She was in the trenches, suffering all the discomforts—even "were they not awful!" and she gave over 1,000 performances that she might be cheered.

Mlle. Vlaitnova was gassed, badly, and now a spasm of less five years of age. And here is so much to do for the boys—and no place to do it, for she has no hall in which to conduct her dancing classes and entertainments.

But she has the use of a hall, by courtesy with her work and the little money needed to support the wounded and disabled with its comforts and luxuries.

The little Russian girl fears that America has forgotten her soldiers of the war.

Beneath a flag, given her at Base Hospital 121 in the Argonne, after the hospital was shelled and she saved the standard from falling in the mud, she gave utterance to this cry:

"I want a hall, so that I may be able to carry on my work," she said. "But they say, 'The war is over.' Still the boys are here and the service cannot be paid for them. I do everything I can, but everything is possible.

"My first experience with the Americans was when I was in a prison detention camp, after I had been captured.

"A peace party came with hand presents—or such terrible dangers—I think me away from the dirt and filth. Those Americans—how brave and how gentle—they shared with me their food and water and they had so much. So I stayed and tried to be of some help.

"It risked much—my life, my health, my honor. I was grassed down and now I have but five years to live and there is so much to be done.

HOW GERMS ARE PLANTED BY A MOSQUITO BITE

In this enlarged drawing the artist illustrates how the mosquito gets in its deadly work. The six lancets of the proboscis puncture the skin and the germs are injected through the tiny opening. At the same time the insect gorges itself on the blood of its victim and carries whatever germs it contains to the next object of its attentions.

PRIEST FLAYS FALL RIVER WAGE CUT

Fall River, Jan. 12.—Characterizing the cut in textile wages as a "gross injustice," Mgr. James E. Cassidy in the pulpit of St. Patrick's Church declared it might be a good thing for the cotton industry to go to the South.

He said that, although the prices of necessities remain at the same high level, 40,000 mill operatives must accept a 10 per cent. reduction in wages. Mgr. Cassidy said the mill owners of the country are nationalized, and stick together, right or wrong.

"The price of food, clothing and rents are still high," the monsignor said. "The manufacturers cannot honestly say that they are not making money on the people when this is so.

"Yet, with the prices of necessary commodities at the same high level the operatives of the city must provide themselves with these necessities from wages that have been unjustly lowered.

"I would have thought that one of the mill men of the city would have had the pride and the courage to stand aloof from his fellows, and refuse to reduce the wages of his employes merely because everyone else was doing so.

"This trouble is, however, that the millowners of the country are nationalized; they stick together right or wrong. The motto of the State and National Cotton Manufacturers' Association should be, 'We give when we must, we take when we can.'"

Mgr. Cassidy.

Professor Bergonie Latest Hero of Laboratory to Die for Humanity's Sake

Heroes are commonly pictured as dashing individuals who single-handed wipe out enemy machine gun nests or lead brilliant charges against overwhelming hosts, and seldom if ever in the modest, unassuming guise of the man of science, whose battlefield is the laboratory, whose most formidable weapons are the X-ray, the microscope and the test tube, and whose foes are the myriad disease germs against which the deadliest of war's most modern engines of destruction are of no avail.

Recently Professor J. Bergonie died in Paris, and some of the daily newspapers made note of the fact under two-column headlines. In a short time his name will be forgotten, except to those whose lives are devoted to the cause of science, which such names as Pershing, Kitchener, Joffre will live for centuries.

Yet, without the popular glory that rewarded their achievements, this lone seeker after truth waged as important a war as they did and died a martyr. He fought the dread cancer, which annually claims thousands of lives, and in the end was himself a victim of that curse, suffering untold agonies before death gave him surcease.

VICTIM OF X-RAY.

Prof. Bergonie was the outstanding figure of recent years in the development of the science of roentgenology, and it was his beloved X-ray that killed him. Constant exposure to the powerful rays gave him a cancer, and the last years of his life were filled with torture.

Two and a half years ago the disease effected his right arm so badly that the member had to be amputated. Despite this handicap and his indescribable sufferings he continued his work, and went on with it even after he had to sacrifice three fingers of his remaining hand.

He died in harness, directing experiments, dictating lectures, and otherwise advancing his fight against the most malignant ill to which human frail is heir.

WOMEN HELD IN TERROR BY PROWLER

Southbridge, Jan. 12.—Police today are searching for a man who has so terrified women of the Hartwell and Marcy street section of the town that they do not get out of their homes after dark.

The latest appearance of the man was Saturday evening. Residents of the neighborhood heard the screams of a woman. They rushed out and saw a man running down a path into the woods. No woman was in sight.

A few minutes later a woman called the police station saying her sister had just been held up by a man in Marcy street. She hung up without giving her name.

This is the third appearance of the man. A few weeks ago a girl was attacked in practically the same place. A few days later another woman was attacked. Each time the man has fled to the woods when the women's screams attracted residents. The man is described as rather short and wears a light cap and brown overcoat.

PAIR SAVED AS CAR GOES INTO ICE POND

Pembroke, Jan. 12.—An auto wrecking crew is engaged in raising the automobile of Henry C. Wagner of Whitman, from the bottom of Oldham Pond, where it plunged yesterday, carrying Wagner and an associate, Thomas F. Sullivan.

Both men managed to get free of the car as it sank, and after swimming about for a time were rescued by men attracted by their shouts.

ROXBURY GIRL HUNTS FOR MISSING SISTER

Sophie Silverman of No. 197 Quincy street, Roxbury, has turned amateur detective in the hope of locating her missing sister, Matilda, who disappeared January 1. On New Year's Eve Matilda stayed out until a late hour. Her mother scolded her and evidently the girl brooded over the reproof.

Sophie Silverman

The following morning Mrs. Silverman and Sophie heard a shrill whistle outside the house. When they went to call the fifteen-year-old miss they found she had vanished.

The next day a letter said the girl was working in the office of a Back Bay doctor. Matilda is described as having reddish bobbed hair, weighs about 110 pounds, is fair, has blue eyes and has blue eyes.

Miss Albrecht.

Miss Albrecht is the daughter of Mrs. H. V. Albrecht of No. 32 Centre street, Brookline.

CHILDREN STEAL TO AID STARVING MOTHER

Captain John T. Curry, red-blooded, two-fisted, "hard-boiled" copper of the Lynn police force is disgusted.

The captain was busy over his reports at the police station when a policeman entered.

In the wake of the patrolman trailed a bedraggled girl of fifteen years, a boy of ten and another boy of eight. The children were shabbily dressed. Their worn shoes offered little protection against the elements and their clothing was scant and tattered.

"Caught them down here in a delapidated store trying to steal a pair of shoes," was the laconic report of the policeman.

"This girl kid, here, she talked to the girl back of the counter. The other two had snack bags and slipped stuff into them while the crew was talking."

Questioning the girl and her companions—her brothers be married—the captain heard a story that brought swift action.

"Send Anna Mangan here," the captain called to the desk sergeant, and a moment later Policewoman Mangan reported to her superior.

In less than half an hour Policewoman Mangan was back with his report.

"The girl's story is right," she reported.

"That in West Lynn I found the mother of those three children. She is a widow, sick in bed.

"There wasn't a thing to eat in the house, captain, and they haven't had a fire for three days because they have no fuel. The mother's shoes are worn out completely—the soles are gone, and these kids were stealing a pair of shoes for her when they were arrested."

10,000,000 ARE TO SEE SUN DARKENED

Josiah Rattleshy, Who Has Read All About the Eclipse, Announces Fact

Josiah Rattleshy was just settling himself back in his favorite "set-down chair for his customary perusal of the newspaper, when Josiah, having wiped and washed away the dishes, was pressing on to her evening's quota of "sewing."

"Josiah Rattleshy:

"I see by the paper that they're goin' to make a big hub-bub about us here eclipse on January 24. Our Harvard professor calculates out about 10,000,000 people'll be makin' a wood chair that day."

"Yes, mighty lot o' folks standing idle craning their necks like that at one time," put in Mrs. Josiah, without looking up from her knitting.

TO USE DIRIGIBLE.

"Not when as this professor says," rejoins Josiah. "The eclipse will develop a deep respect for the trainin' and knowledge that leads to predictions of celestial phenomena as accurate and certain that superstitions are no longer founded upon them."

"That eclipse," Mrs. Josiah opines, "may wipe out the sight of the sun, but it'll have to go a long ways to wipe out superstitions, some o've those ye have about if ye left ear itches—"

"As balkin' as ever against scientific progress," brunks in her husband. "But before Aramanda has a chance to come back, Josiah rushes on:

"The Navy Department has landed the derrigible Los Angeles for the occasion, the paper goes on to say. It's comin' up New England way to allow the observatory officials to take photographs and movies from an altitude of 6,000 feet or more while over Nantucket.

"These officials calculate that by flyin' over the ocean this airship will be where the totality of the eclipse is the longest and at this height sort o' clear of haze and mornin' mist."

"And what are they going to do with these photographs and movies when they git them?" queried Mrs. Josiah.

TRIP TO WESTERLY.

"That the paper doesn't say, but I presume they are agoin' to study them. That's where scientific progress comes in, ye see. Well, to go on after a foolish interruption. I was down by the station today and I saw a poster with big red letters readin' 'When It Is Nightime in the Daytime.' It had what it called a regional map and showed where the eclipse can be best seen and where you could get a train to see it."

"Get a train to see it?" broke in Aramanda, dropping a stitch at the same time. "Anybody'd think it were a private exhebition, and that you'd have to go to some particular spot to meet up with here darkness."

"It's no! any such thing o' the sort," snapped back Josiah. "The New Haven Railroad after a consultation with Professir Stetson at the Harvard observatory calculated if folks wanted to get a good view of the phenomena they could go to Westerly, Rhode Island, a most convenient point within that eclipse area reachable by train."

"And they expect to git them 10,000,000 folks to come to Westerly and stand there cranin' their necks all day?"

"Certainly not. But the excursion trip would kind o' interest me. Trains are scheduled to leave South Station, Boston, at 8:35 on the mornin' of the twenty-fourth, the day off and see time here. The cost o' the round trip amounts to $2.15, only half the regular fare, and I kind o' calculate I could take all her senses," snapped the Mrs. Josiah, abruptly putting aside her knitting. "If there's any observin' to be done ye can do it from right here 'tween the day's chores."

"Oh, I was just suggestin' the idee to meself, that was all." Josiah assured her, and Aramanda resumed her knitting. Josiah, though slightly unnasy from the flareup, resumed his reading.

Amid the soft clicking of the knitting needles he went on to read how Harvard has arranged to hold up its regular mid-year exams, scheduled for that day to permit the students to get a full view of the eclipse. And he also went on to read how radio operators, laboratory specialists and radio broadcasters working with the Bureau of standards are to take records of the phenomena which effects the other waves. G. W. Pickard, a Boston radio engineer, being among them. And that broadcasting stations at Buffalo and Springfield, Mass., in the path of the moon's shadow, will send signals constantly.

And then Josiah gradually dozed off and dreamt that Aramanda and he were going up to the moon in a huge airship and——

"Allright, Josiah," a voice broke in on his dream, "that limp and go

"Great stuff for coughs!"

—says Mr. O'Brien, about REM

A big, husky fellow is Joseph J. O'Brien of 225 Bowen St., South Boston. Sitting up at the wheel of his truck he looks about as healthy as a man could be.

Yet it was only a little while ago that he was off the driver's seat with a hard dry cough that left his throat raw. REM soothed that rawness, however, and relieved that cough in five hours. Is it any wonder he says that "REM's great stuff!"

Mr. O'Brien speaking now:

"I had a terrible cough a week ago Saturday—couldn't speak above a whisper. I was so hoarse I had to stay out from work a half day. The cough kept me awake two nights and I felt all in.

"I let it go for three days, but one night I was in Somers' Drug Store, cor. E. & 7th Sts., and asked him if REM was good for a cough. He said he thought it was very good. I took it according to directions and felt great relief in about five hours. Soon the cough was gone. I think it's great stuff, and have told many of my friends about it."

Grateful users who have passed the good word along are largely responsible for REM'S widespread popularity.

A special ingredient in REM—effective, harmless—is not found in ordinary cough syrups. Clinging to your throat as it is swallowed, REM spreads a soothing, healing film over the sore, inflamed membranes.

No Opiates in REM. And pleasant to take.

Ask your druggist for REM—the blue package with the round orange label. You can have your money back if it doesn't help you. You're the Judge and Jury.

The plan to reorganize the Boston & Maine Railroad is of tremendously important to the business, industrial and economic life of New England. It calls for a taxing up of the road's finances and for the abandonment of 1,000 miles of unprofitable branch lines.

KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Back Hurts or Bothers You, Take Jad Salts

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys gets sluggish and clogged you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your druggist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

B. & M. REASON FOR 192-MILE CUT IN LINES

Further Abandonment Seen If U. S. Approves First Reduction Plan

The plan to reorganize the Boston & Maine Railroad to eliminate 192 miles of lines unprofitable to the railroad, but important to the business, industrial and economic life of New England, if only for a testing out of the road's finances and for the saving of 1,000 miles of unprofitable branch lines.

The Boston American, appreciating the magnitude of the undertaking, sounding public opinion in communities most affected and also for the first time, in comparative manner, the actual experience of "Bee" lines planned.

Charles L. Amster, one of the most informed railroad experts in the country, will tell what he thinks of the plan from the standpoint of stockholders and the public.

Later articles will describe public sentiment in New Hampshire, where communities have become so alarmed that they have held mass meetings, adopted resolutions and engaged counsel to present their opposition at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing to be held soon.

By BERT FORD.

A real problem confronts certain communities in New England as a result of the plan to reorganize the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Railroads which they have been using for years are to be abandoned, the promise of the Loring plan that other vehicles will be substituted for them isn't a balm.

In many communities there is a belief that a reputation of isolation will follow abolition of a railroad as those owners say cutting away a branch line will make hamlets and towns "seem more in the back woods than ever."

There is a sentiment being "shelved."

Chairman Homer Loring of the executive committee of the Boston & Maine, author of the reorganization plan, says the road has been "holding the bag" for unprofitable lines for years and that the time has come when these lean branches must be discontinued.

CONCERN OVER FREIGHT

In some affected communities, such as Gorhamtown, N. H., more concern is felt for freight service than for passenger service.

Manufacturers say motor trucks cannot take the place of freight trains and that abandonment of rail freight service will result in compulsory moving of factories to more convenient shipping centers.

In planning the proposed cut Chairman Loring viewed the intricate Boston & Maine system as a giant tree and decided to "prune" wherever possible. Petitions for a total of 192 miles have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Petitions for the balance of 508 miles of the 1,000 eventually sought to be discontinued, will be filed in due time.

It is impossible at this time to make public the full list of branch lines included in the 1,000 miles to be dropped, as planned. Officials of the Boston & Maine explained that some of the proposed cuts are still being debated and that until taken upon and petitioned for the doomed branches cannot be disclosed. Abandonment petitions already filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission follow:

Nashua & Acton	24
Lines near Tewksbury, Mass.	22
Newburyport Branch	20
Manchester-Henniker, N. H.	22
Suncook Valley	22
New Boston, N. H.	5
Milford-Grasmere	18
Belmont Branch, N. H.	4
Bethlehem Branch, N. H.	7
Peterborough Railroad, N. H.	11
Greenfield-Keene-Wilton, N. H.	30
Total	195 miles

The Nashua-Acton cut would affect Dunstable and East Groton.

The Newburyport branch cut would affect Newburyport, Byfield, Rowley, Haverhill Bridge, Tuxbury Mill, Island Park, Groveland, Georgetown, Bradgate, Bickford, Hogsfield, Parkersville, Danvers, Tapleyville, Collins Street, West Peabody, Lynnfield Centre, Lowell Street, Wakefield Centre, Wakefield Junction.

The abandonment of lines near Tewksbury, Mass., would affect West Andover, Hurtts and Haggetts.

The Suncook Valley is operated as a local line. Its abandonment would affect Suncook, Blodgett, Allenstown, Short Falls, Epsom, Chichester, Webster's Mills, Pike Cliff, Barnstead and Centre Barnstead.

The Manchester-Henniker cut would affect Grasmere, Dunbarton, Grasmere, Shirley Hill, Goffstown, Parker, Riverdale, Bargon, Everett, East Weare, North Weare and Colby.

The Milford-Grasmere cut would affect Grasmere Junction, Tuttell Hill, Hollwood, Bedford, South Bedford, Stowell, Babcocks Lake and Amherst.

WILL USE BUSES.

Chairman Loring says motor buses for passenger service and motor trucks for freight service will be substituted for train service. Liberal motor vehicle service, he said, would be furnished by the Boston & Maine Transportation Company. The experiment of substituting motor vehicle service for trains service in New England is interesting railroads throughout the country.

Critics argue that the desire to rehabilitate the Boston & Maine is likely to be done regardless of the welfare of communities and the rights and convenience of passengers and shippers.

Chairman Loring denied this.

"It is true that lean lines which have been operated at a loss for years will be abandoned by necessity, if our petition is granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission," said Mr. Loring. "But that doesn't mean that the communities served by such branches will be deserted.

"No railroad would do that. It is to the interest of a railroad to give the best service possible and to help promote industry in the smaller and more remote sections. A railroad depends on just such business. Then why should it cripple it by any plan of its own?

"Instead of deserting the communities on the lean branches which it is planned to cut off, motor bus service for passengers and motor truck service for freight would be substituted and more trips made than it is possible to provide on the more costly steam train schedules.

"It costs $1.25 per mile to operate a steam train and from 25 to 30 cents a mile to operate bus and motor truck lines. It can be seen, therefore, that it would be possible to give more frequent service to remote and thinly-populated sections with motor transportation.

"A year after the change it allowed, we feel certain that communities will wonder why they protested when they see the benefits of motor vehicles as compared with fewer trains. Sections now served by but one train daily may have two or more bus lines a day.

"As it is believed that on the lines to be discontinued the transition from railroad to motor vehicles will be accomplished without unfavorably affecting the communities and the small industries served. The Boston & Maine Transportation Company has been organized to assist with the motor service.

"Our road seeks the co-operation of the public. It is our desire to have the plan properly understood."

U. S. MARINES LANDED IN SHANGHAI

Patrol the Foreign Settlement, Which Is in Range of Rival Armies

Shanghai, Jan. 12 (I.N.S.)—Marines from the naval units stationed here, including the Americans, have landed and today were assisting the regular defensive troops in patrolling the foreign settlement, which was within range and sight of the fighting incident to the coup of Chi Hsieh Yuan and Sun Chuan Fang.

The soldiery, both of General Chi whose attack was a defiance directed at the provincial government in Peking, and of the defending forces led by the Peking appointee, Chang Young-Min, ran wild through Nantao, the native city, which adjoins on the south of the French settlement here.

Native merchants and householders in that region today were frantically removing their possessions into the protected foreign quarters, in defense of which the volunteer corps, comprising most of the foreigners in Shanghai, had been called out.

The volunteer corps, aided by Chinese merchants and members of the Chinese fire fighting brigade, is making futile efforts to cope with the unrestrained soldiery.

General Maurice was noted during the war for the weekly press talks with the war correspondents. He headed the English war intelligence office and it was from him that official statements of operations were given to the press of the world.

In 1918 he incurred the wrath of the British War Office when he published a letter in a London newspaper challenging statements of Premier Lloyd George and Chancellor of the Exchequer A. In many communities there is a belief that a reputation of isolation will follow abolition of a railroad as local centers are cutting away branch line will make hamlets and towns "seem more in the back woods than ever."

They resent being "shelved."

Chairman Hunter Loring of the executive committee of the Boston & Maine, author of the reorganization plan, says the road has been "bleeding the taxpayers unjustifiable lines for years and that "no time has come when these lean branches must be abandoned."

CENTERS OVER FREIGHT

In some affected communities such as Goffstown, N. H., rates are seen as fair for freight service than for passenger service.

Manufacturers say motor trucks cannot take the place of freight trains and that abandonment of rail freight service will result in compulsory moving of factories to more convenient shipping centers.

In speaking of the proposed cuts Chairman Loring viewed the situation from a Maine standpoint as a great tree and decided to "prune wherever possible. Pruning for a total of 192 miles have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is impossible at this time to make public the full list of branch lines included in the 1,000 miles to be dropped, as planned. Officials of the Boston & Maine are making a study of the proposed cuts here and being debated and that only tentative plans, some of which may be changed, have been made. 'A LOST LADY' FEATURE FILM AT FENWAY

"A Lost Lady," starring Irene Rich, is the feature picture at the Fenway this week.

The theme is the Harriet Thurgate romance, but in a somewhat interesting manner and beautiful Miss Rich, who is a real actress, lends charm to a role, which presents possibilities for fine acting.

The portrayal of the deterioration of the character of Marian Thurgate by Miss Rich is unique and clever. As the lonely divorced wife neglected she carries the sympathetic appeal with restraint and dignity.

Matt Moore is likable and convincing as Neil Sherburn. Victor Fo has only a small part, but makes it a real characterization, and George Fawcett, as Captain Forrester, gives a convincing portrayal of an old man pathetic in his attempt to find out other people's needs to make her happy and to give it to her if possible.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more prompt, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and whooping cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Society to Turn Out in Force at Big Skating Carnival

By Betty Alden

ROYAL sport is in store for the fashionable folk who will be among those present at the Arena, Tuesday afternoon at the Skating Club, when Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard and Nat Niles, Jr., will stage for Boston charity, and incidentally for the Citizens of Harvard and the town of Hartford, with the aid of no meagre a hockey match as the latest ardent enthusiasm may wish.

Mrs. Blanchard is the daughter of A. Wilson Weld, of Chestnut Hill, and Brookline. She became out last year, in a manner now fascinating society, with its title country, in Canada, and in Switzerland after. Whether she will continue the season here, to town is considered, either of one two numbers more or no remainder we.

Nat Niles, a figure skater of wide fame, and Sherwin Badger, who married Marie Bancroft, and now is living in Cuba, figure prominently as Mrs. Blanchard's partners on the ice.

As for the gaiety of the evening, every one who has followed the history of the Crimson on the ice knows Nat Hughes and George Owen, the brilliant players.

Young Mr. Owen was graduated from Harvard with high scholastic standing and a string of wins to his credit, a record he duplicated. A few months ago he married Lorna Trafford, whose brother, Bertrand Trafford, was a noted Crimson athlete of the '90s.

Mr. Bigelow is one of the men in the Hegro Forbes Bigelow family. Another member of the set for Harvard was one season after another. This Winter he is in social.

Leon York and Casserine Wannamaker—the latter new hockey coach at Yale—will carry some of the Dartmouth colors, and many a thrill is in store for the onlookers.

This contingent will be of first importance, socially. Reservations for boxes and other vantage points have been made by Mesdames Hugh Bancroft, Amory Lawrence, Charles Goddard Weld, Frederick A. Whitwell and Henry C. Forrest, to mention but a few, and every financial success is sure to accrue to the Radcliffe Endowment Fund, for which the Radcliffe Club is staging the affair.

GRACE CUSHING

Boston society girl, who shortly is to take up a business career. She is the daughter of Mrs. George Cushing.

THE betrothal of Katharine Hill, daughter of Mrs. John Fremont Hill, to John Lee Merrill is vastly interesting to the girls of 1922-3. Katharine Hill and Dorothy Hill, who later became the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hill, were presented at a brilliant tea at the Somerset, that Winter.

They are both Winsor School girls, and after one season of debutante activities they sailed away to Europe for a long and leisurely travel of many months' duration. They did London and Paris, toured Italy in leisurely manner, and spent the Spring in the south of France, where they won a prize in the carnival at Nice, for their beautifully decorated car.

Mr. Merrill is a Harvard 1919 man, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Merrill, and belongs to the Essex County Club and the Tennis and Racquet. College affiliations were with the Hasty Pudding, Phoenix and A. D. Clubs, and the Institute of 1770. During the World War he served with the destroyer flotilla overseas.

ALL Miss Polly Proctor's friends at the Assembly on Friday last were much interested in the news of her brother, John Riker Proctor's engagement to that charming Southern girl, Miss Margaret Hall, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Amos Robbins, Jr., who is home in it in New Orleans, and she claims kinship with the Slater and other famous families of the old Southern regime. She attended school at Dobbs Ferry.

Mr. Proctor's late mother was one of the highly connected matrons of the smart set. The family lives on Commonwealth avenue, and have, as well, a North Shore estate.

The wedding will be celebrated, according to present plans, in June at the Summer home of the bride's mother up on the Maine Coast at Camden.

THE George Higginsons, with their interesting daughters, Lee and Theresa, are on the high seas aboard the steamship Duilio, bound for the Mediterranean, with Genoa and Naples on their itinerary.

Lee and Theresa Higginson are cousins of Mrs. George Lyman, Jr., and of Mrs. Bernard Rogers, Jr., daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson. They go in for the pictorial effect in fashionings, and always are distinctly "different," affecting the Spanish type with much success.

Last Winter Theresa and Lee had an apartment in town, while their parents spent a portion of the Winter at their Lenox place, where the girls play the hostess role frequently for small or large groups of their many friends.

Society Notes

MRS. T. JAMES HOWLAND, of Brookline, with full dinner party at the Hotel Vendome, has been entertaining her daughter, Mrs. O. B. Cheney, of Hartford, England. Mrs. Bowlker was Katharine Lowell, a sister of President Abbott Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, and her first husband was a Roosevelt.

Mrs. Bowlker is energetically interested in a number of philanthropies, and like Mrs. Brandegee and Mrs. Danielson, is known to her circle simply as "Mrs. Howland." A fashion set by the late Mrs. Astor, who ruled Manhattan society of an earlier generation with such a firm hand.

Mrs. Amory Hollingsworth came in Winter at the Vendome, has departed southward and will stay for the late White and Spring in Florida and Cuba.

Mrs. Amory Hollingsworth came Rome from a round of visits in New York to put in an appearance at the Assembly at the Copley Plaza, the mecca for the smart world last Friday. Mrs. Hollingsworth wore a handsome creation of gold cloth and gold lace, and she added to its already glowing merits, a double strand about her neck.

Mrs. George Cushing, one of the early comers at the Assembly, after an evening at the Theatre was statuesque in black velvet, designed in cut crystals and silver.

Miss Grace Cushing, the 1922 daughter, and one of the much feted girls of the Winter, is soon to take a position, on the social, albeit but for a very short time.

This more serious occupation is but an interlude in the merry round for the debutantes, and will in no way interfere with Miss Grace's participation therein.

LYNNFIELD TO DISCUSS RAILROAD QUESTION

Lynnfield has called a special town meeting for January 19 to leave if the citizens will take any action towards making a special appropriation on the town's contribution towards having the Southern portion of the Boston & Maine watch pass through the town, continue in operation. The town will also act on the matter of employing special counsel in conducting the fight for retention of the branch.

DIVINITY STUDENT WHO SLED

LONDON ON AIR FOR U. S. NEXT THURSDAY

London, Jan. 12.—American radio enthusiasts will have a chance next Thursday night to listen in at the first cabaret performance ever broadcast from this side of the water.

Preliminary tests having proved satisfactory the management of London's Midnight Follies has decided to broadcast through the high power station at Chelmsford the whole show, beginning at 11:45 p. m.

The most popular item of the performance, which is considerably more ambitious than the usual cabaret, is the rehabilitation of Leslie Stuart's famous double entendre from Flora Dora in "Tell Me Pretty Maiden." Broadcasting company are confident that the show can be heard as far away as the Pacific Coast.

"Y" PLANS BIG DRIVE TO RAISE $138,579

Next Monday the Boston Y. M. C. A. will begin its annual financial canvass for money to complete its yearly budget. The association announces that it needs $138,579. A canvassing organization of volunteers has been formed. W. Irving Bullard will again be commander-in-chief and Paul C. Clark vice-commander. There will be four divisions of team workers, headed by Everett S. Litchfield, T. Grafton Abbott, Albert P. Everts and Arthur Perry, Jr. There also will be a flying squadron, and station representing the Dorchester Centre Y. M. C. A. and a division representing the Boston & Maine branch if the Y. M. C. A. The first meeting of the teams, officially opening the canvass, will be held at the Boston City Club next Monday night.

WANTS SERVICE, NOT BRAINS, AS COLLEGE TEST

Ithaca, N. J., Jan. 12.—Service, rather than brains, should be the deciding factor in limiting admission to present-day colleges, Dr. Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, declared here today in a speech prepared for delivery at exercises in observance of Founders' Day at Cornell University.

Elimination of the intellectually unfit, Mr. Graves admitted, is proper, but the idea of an "aristocracy of service" he believed, rests the true possibility of future development and improvement in the value of America's universities.

POOR WIDOW SHARES IN $2,000,000 ESTATE

New York, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Helen Baird, widow of a policeman, wondered today if she had been dreaming. She was so used to getting up on cold mornings and scraping together breakfast for four hungry children that she could scarcely believe it was all at an end. It had been a hard job to make both ends meet.

She learned today that she and her family had inherited one-third of an estate of $2,000,000 left by her father-in-law, who died fifteen years ago.

DE PACHMANN THRILLS IN FAREWELL CONCERT

The inimitable Vladimir de Pachmann gave what was scheduled to be his farewell concert at Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon.

There was seemingly no end to the amount of applause that this audience would bestow on the famous and aged pianist. And all of its was deserved. If de Pachmann has really passed from our midst, then we have lost one of the last figures of music of this generation.

KIMBALL SECRETARY OF B. U. TRUSTEES

Frank W. Kimball, of Kimball & Co. of No. 31 Milk street, has been elected secretary of the board of trustees of Boston University. Mr. Kimball succeeds Dr. George S. Butters, who resigned. He is a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the City Club, Twentieth Century Club and other organizations. He graduated from the College of Liberal Arts in 1894.

LAST NIGHT

By THE LISTENER

In listening to the local church services last night as broadcast by WNAC and WEEI, I was under some difficulty in deciding which was most interesting. From WNAC the service from Park Street Church could be heard, with a fine sermon by Dr. A. Z. Conrad. WEBHS broadcast was of Dr. Masses's sermon entitled "How Far Is It to Hell?"

In consideration of the impressive and spectacular title of Dr. Masses's sermon, I'm afraid most of us spent quite some time with him. This sermon was probably the subject of more curiosity on account of the fact that Dr. S. Parks Cadman, in his Y. M. C. A. Forum broadcast yesterday afternoon, answered a question dealing with Hell.

It seems that someone from Boston sent in a question which read something like "What Is the Difference between Heaven and Hell?" Dr. Cadman, in answering it stated he couldn't understand why anybody from Boston would ask a question like that. Very likely the same question was dealt with by Dr. Masses in his brilliant sermon.

In listening to WEEI's afternoon program the general listener is impressed not only with the efficient manner in which the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. Men's Forum is conducted, but with the type of man Dr. Cadman appears to be. To hear him answer those questions with such lightning-like rapidity, is to realize the extent to which such a man's reasoning powers must be developed. There is no wonder that Dr. Cadman is interesting to all of us.

Receiving conditions last night were emphatically not good. I say this principally from the viewpoint of long distance reception. The static was so heavy that it interfered with everything excepting the local stations. Of course, with the powerful WNAC, there is considerably more ambitious than the usual cabaret, is the rehabilitation of Leslie Stuart's famous double entendre from Flora Dora in "Tell Me Pretty Maiden." Broadcasting company are confident that the show can be heard as far away as the Pacific Coast.

Tock another trip down on the South shore section through Hanover and Pembroke yesterday afternoon. In talking with some of the radio fans down there I learned that for the past week they have been getting WNAC's signals a good deal clearer, and without the heterodyning squeal which has bothered of late.

This is probably due to the fact that WNAC has increased their wave slightly. I found one gentleman who swears (yes, on Sunday!) that he tuned in the morning service from a Chicago church yesterday. He says he heard the sermon, and then heard the announcer sign off with Central Standard Time. This is a record to be proud of.

The Capitol Theatre program last night was a corker. With such faultless reproduction as accorded it by the WEAF-WEEI combination it was on the border of perfection. In some of his remarks Roxy expressed regret at the criticism accorded his last week's program by one of the Boston papers. Instead of being sarcastic about it Roxy appeared to be genuinely sorry that there was someone who had actually found fault with the efforts of the "gang."

In this connection we remember the remarks made by Walter Damrosch regarding musical critics sometime ago during a broadcast through WEAF. When asked what effect the musical critic had upon the artist Mr. Damrosch said, "The musical critic is to the artist what the flea is to the dog." Roxy probably agrees with Mr. Damrosch.

Have you been getting WOC rather loud lately? WOC is the broadcasting station of the Palmer School of Chiropractic at Davenport, Iowa. They have recently installed one of the new Western Electric 10,000 watt super-power transmitters. Many of my friends have reported him with excellent audibility lately.

If you get any stronger reception from WOC, write to Mr. Frank R. Elliot, care of Station WOC, Davenport, Iowa, and tell him about it. Mr. Elliot is an official of this station and is anxious to know how the new set is getting into the East. I heard them the other night, and they were louder by a good deal than WEAF!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

So many letters are received asking just what the WNAC American Women's Club is and how to become a member and I am going to take this morning to answer these questions.

Our club was officially formed for the readers of the Boston Daily American and for the benefit of the friends who listen over the radio to the morning chats from Station WNAC when Jean Sargeant and Martha Lee broadcast daily on subjects of interest to women. The club slogan is "To Better Our Lives" and it stands for Better Homes.

Better Food,
Better Cooking,
Better Clothes,
Better Reading,
Better Buying,
Better Thrift.
Better Times.
Better Vacations,
Better Womanhood.

From time to time entertainments are given, such as the series of radio teas at the Shepard Stores last May, the sightseeing trip through the Great Atlantic & Pacific Food Plant in August; the tickets to the Food Fair in Horticultural Hall in October, the series of eleven complimentary theatre parties at the Majestic Theatre in November and the recent Christmas party and cake contest at club headquarters in the Boston American Building.

A membership ticket bearing a registered number is given to all who make application for membership in this interesting club of no dues but many benefits, and all that is necessary to do to secure tickets is to the many social activities of the club is to write in, giving your membership number. Your membership card also entitles you to take part in the monthly prize contest, full particulars of which appear in the Boston American every Saturday and Monday on the magazine page, the subject changing every month. Sometimes the contest is for recipes or menus—this month $500 in prizes will be awarded for the 30 best letters on "How My Membership in the WNAC American Women's Club has helped me."

Your certificate of membership also entitles you to free personal advice from Martha Lee, Priscilla Price or Jean Sargent on all "Better" subjects.

Better information on home decorations.

Frequent bulletins on "Better" subjects.

Better personal shopping advice.

Better pattern information.

Better vacation and travel information.

Better school, college and camp information.

Better suggestions and information on new approved household equipment.

Members also have the use of the Club Room on the fifth floor of the Boston American Building at No. 8 Winthrop square. This is a large, lovely room where the monthly prizes are on exhibition, prize winning exhibits displayed on the bulletin board and the latest magazines are kept on the big reading table. Here members may come to read, write letters, rest after shopping, meet their friends or talk with Martha Lee, and Jean Sargent, of course, is always glad to welcome members at the beautiful Shepard Studios at No. 1 Winter place.

Since June 1, 15,840 New England Women have registered as members in the WNAC American Women's Club and we believe that this is going to be the largest and most interesting organization for women in this section of the country. We have many plans for future activities and, as it seems more than probable that in the not far distant future that it will be necessary to limit our membership number, I would advise every one of you who are listening in today and who have not already received a membership card to send in their application without delay.

And I am sure that every one of you will want to enter this month's contest, for certainly the prizes are just the things every woman covets. Address letters to Martha Lee, Boston American, No. 8 Winthrop square, Boston.

ONLY SEVEN MORE PUZZLES IN AMERICAN'S $1,000 CONTE

HOLD EACH SOLUTION UNTIL ALL ARE ANSWERED

Things are tripping along merrily to a grand finish. Seven puzzles more and then the rush for the grand grab —of your share of the $1,000 pot.

The Boston American Cross-Word Puzzle Contest will run into the early part of next week. Keep plugging away at each of the puzzles as it appears from day to day until the end, and if you can secure the time, settle over the puzzles you have solved up to date. You'll find it worth while.

As for today's, see the section could find theirs soft and feathery. There's one week in the checkerboard that takes the sort of puffs "down with it," while another will try to stave off, but don't let it throw you. The juniors will find a little enemy of only three letters in their brain-teaser. Ask dad, he knows.

Since the contest is rapidly drawing to a close, the Puzzle Editor thinks it meet to republish the rules and prizes for the benefit of the newcomers. So here goes:

1—Hold on to your puzzle solutions until the thirteenth one has been published. Then send them in TOGETHER, with name and address printed plainly on each puzzle.

2—Junior solvers, in addition to giving their names and addresses, must include their age and a notation from teacher or parent certifying that this age is correct. Only persons under eighteen may compete in the junior race.

3—Each set of solutions must be accompanied by a letter not over 300 words on "Why I Like Cross-Word Puzzles."

4—The award of prizes will be based on accuracy of solution and fullness and legibility of both positions and letter in each case.

5—Any person is eligible as governed by these rules to enter the contest, with the exception of employes of Hearst publications and their families, or persons employed as Cross-Word solvers or creators by other publications.

6—All answers must be addressed to the Cross-Word Puzzle Editor, Boston American, No. 8 Winthrop Square, Boston, and the Puzzle Editor will be the sole judge, whose decision will be final.

7—Contest closes at midnight, January 24, 1925. All answers or sets of answers must be in the hands of the Puzzle Editor before that time, or bear a post-mark timed before that date and hour.

8—Eight to receive prizes first these rules in any time is reserved by the Cross-Word Puzzle Editor. And contestants entering the competition so agree.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets — the substitute for calomel — are gentle vegetable laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost identical with that of calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are safe to use. Dr. Edwards' prescription is used to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the work that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth, cause nausea or make you sick. They take hold of the trouble and quickly move it on and out of the system. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets (Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums, do its strong effects. Be sure not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that fear feeling soon from constipation and a disordered liver, vanish. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets work just that way—they "tone" the clogged brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

LAWSON TAKES REVENGE ON C. F. KING

Postmaster 'Too Poor' to Buy Overcoat in 11 Years

NO SHOES SINCE 1913

Rural $100-a-Year Man Protests to Coolidge; Tells How He Exists

Could you live on $100 a year?

Would you be willing to work 12 or 14 hours a day, six days a week, for less than 32c cents a day?

"Absolutely impossible! It can't be done" is the universal answer to these queries.

Yet it is being done—has been done for the past eleven years by an employe of the richest nation in the world—the United States Government.

W. D. Bartlett, postmaster at the little town of Beansburg, Vt., is the man who for more than a decade has eked out an existence on less than the average Boston youth pays for cigarettes or the average Boston girl spends for silk stockings.

Mr. Bartlett's salary on his $100 a year job is reduced to the following clothing schedule:

Buys one coat and overcoat in 11 years.

Bought one pair of cheap slippers, several pairs of overshoes, but no shoes since 1913.

Bought two pairs of trousers, costing less than $2 per pair, and has gotten two pairs of trousers as a gift during the past 11 years.

Earns his salary by odd jobs on the farm of his little home for his wife, for which the government pays him nothing.

NOTHING TO DO.

Besides his mail for a district comprising over 100 square miles; acts as a notarizing officer for the United States Army and Navy; sells securities for the United States Treasury Department; prepares crop reports and also other clerical work for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Aside from Sundays, has had three days' vacation in eleven years, two days being taken "off" when summoned to Burlington to testify against an accused rural carrier.

All this for $100 a year.

The unique situation of the High Cost of Living Problem came to light when Postmaster Bartlett wrote to President Coolidge criticizing the President for vetoing the bill providing for increased compensation for rural workers.

WHAT HE LIVES.

"I feel sure your veto which would have given me $10 more a month, would have resulted in your not understanding the situation in the least, underpaid officers," the postmaster wrote the President.

"Then, this thrifty government employs Mrs. Mr. Coolidge how he managed to live for the past eleven years on $100 per year.

"By doing all the work alone, and my own cooking, washing and mending and other housework, and getting my own wood from the woods back, with a small garden, I have managed to keep the office going for eleven years or more, but always with constantly increasing work."

There is a pathetic note in the postmaster's letter: "I have been hungry, sometimes, for want of money to buy some needed food," says the letter to the White House. "I feel very much oftener I have been hungry for want of time to order or prepare the food."

AMERICAN WOMAN IS HONORED BY MUSSOLINI

Rome, Jan. 12.—Premier Mussolini has authorized the appointment of Mrs. John Adams Drake as the first American woman Fascist.

Mrs. A. J. Drexel Mrs. Drake, on being introduced to the Italian Dictator, expressed such enthusiastic regard for the patriotic organization that Mussolini issued the order assigning her to membership of the Black-shirters.

The New York woman is president of the American Free Milk and Relief for Italy Society. Her relief work has won her honors from the Italian government and Pope Pius, by whom she was received in private audience.

LAWSON AND KING, SET FOR FRAY

TWO ARCH ENEMIES IN PITILESS COMBAT

At left is shown Cardenio F. King, with whom Thomas W. Lawson engaged in a battle to the death. Lawson is shown in a fighting mood.

HOW LAWSON TOOK HIS REVENGE ON KING

THIS is the thirty-fifth chapter of the adventurous career of Thomas W. Lawson, one-time financial mogul, now broken in health and spirit and close to poverty. Previous chapters have related his adventurs in finance, in home building and as an author.

IN a few glaring instances, Cardenio F. King ranged far from the truth in telling of his battle to the death with Tom Lawson.

In how many more instances, not quite so open and apparent, similar strayings exist it is hard to tell, for financial enmities and the warfares resulting are murky and of low visibility, indeed.

Undoubtedly it was the overboiling of bilious rancor that brought the following from King, for even most of his enemies admit that Tom Lawson's one soft side was turned toward his family:

"I have never personally met Tom Lawson. For many months we ate luncheon daily at the same hour in the same dining room at Young's Hotel.

"He has never in his life spoken one word to me. I have never in my life spoken one word to him.

"I have read that Lawson is a devoted parent. Well, I have seen him at luncheon with his children. He led the way cheerfully down the room. A son and daughter followed him.

Pictures Lawson Meal

"They sat at his table and he ordered the luncheon. They were not consulted. They did not even handle a menu card.

"He had no part to play on that occasion. Across from him was sitting no financier whose mind Lawson strived to impress with his omnipotence in the markets, no journalist upon whom he was concentrating his powers of acting for the reward of a flattering write-up.

"No one even the muscles of his face laughed. He sat scowling, as is his natural wont.

"The luncheon he ordered was served and the trio fell to eating it. There was no badinage to lighten the meal; no conversation to aid digestion.

"Each ate quickly, silently, solemnly. Once the little girl spoke to her brother. She glanced nervous, affrighted, at her father as she did so.

"The boy looked at a monocled table. Conversation halted. The little girl looked toward the pale blood face. I wondered what she would. Perhaps an ice or some form of dessert.

"She did not ask for it—Lawson had ordered the meal and it was evidently no part of the Lawson domestic policy to break superfluous bread with his wife. She ate what had been

ALL BUT HOOVER AND MELLON TO QUIT CABINET

Washington, Jan. 12 (I.N.S.)—President Coolidge will begin his own administration on the 4th of March next with a Cabinet that will bear but little resemblance to the one he inherited from the late President Harding a year and a half ago.

Important shifts in the diplomatic corps are also in the making, and will emphasize the "new deal" that Washington expects to see when Mr. Coolidge begins "President in his own right."

Of the Cabinet which Mr. Coolidge took over from the Harding regime four now have gone or are going and six remained. Mellon, Hoover, Weeks, Davis, New and Work. Of these the expectation prevails that all but Secretary Mellon and Secretary Hoover will retire by March 4.

There also will be a vacancy in the Agricultural Department, due to Secretary Gore becoming Governor of West Virginia. Recent developments have indicated that Robert D. Carey, ex-Governor of Wyoming, now head of the Coolidge Agricultural Commission, will be appointed to this post.

Secretary of War Weeks, who has not been in good health, is credited with a desire to retire on this account.

TWO BURGLAR SCARES KEEP LYNN POLICE BUSY

Forty Lynn policemen were kept on the jump by two burglar scares. The J. B. Blood Company store on Summer street was surrounded and searched, but with no result. Escaping steam in the J. R. Herrick shoe factory was mistaken for noise made by a burglar.

ACCLAIM SACRIFICE OF SINGER FOR SISTER

New York, Jan. 12.—Nearly a dozen years ago Carmela Ponselle stepped aside in her pursuit of operatic fame in order that her little sister, Rosa, might have the opportunity.

Last night Carmela, whose sacrifice resulted in Rosa's arrival as a favorite prima donna, sang with her more famous sisters before one of the greatest audiences ever to fill the Metropolitan opera House. Thime and time again the acclaim of the crowded house recalde Carmela, who sang the aria "O Don Fatale" from "Don Carlos." Later, with Rosa, she sang the duet from the second act of "Aida." Years ago both sisters had the ambition and voice possibilities for gran dopera. There was money enough for only one to study. The other must earn. So Carmela continued in vaudeville.

Valet to Dog Quits, Work Too Hard

Son of former Russian diplomat, a Tech student, got job exercising "Buster," but soon quit. The dog is too strenuous, he explained.

RUDNICK, MILLIONAIRE REALTOR, ASKS DIVORCE

The marital difficulties of Joseph Rudnick, millionaire real estate operator and his wife, Mollie Barron Rudnick, again are before the courts in the form of a petition by Rudnick for a divorce.

Several months ago, Rudnick attempted to have his marriage annulled on the ground that his wife was mentally deficient at the time they were married.

BOTH BOSTON BALL CLUBS TO START NEW TRADING SYSTE

WILL SWAP ATHLETES AT CAMP

By SICK STATLEY

BOSTON baseball clubs are going to establish new spring training records. Both the Braves and Red Sox intend to take the train early Southward, then and keep it a dark down on the very fringe of the season. At least that is the idea of President's Mathewson and Quinn are trying just now.

Both local magnates stepped out in the open shortly after the baseball season ended. Both declared that young material was the sine qua non, whatever that means of baseball rejuvenation. Likewise the dress words used by each season was inaugurated and the ve were duly forgiven.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

ANNE wants to know why she has never had a beau. Maybe you think that's a frivolous subject for editorial space.

If so, guess again. This paper may be filled with speeches, crime, international news and the movement of armies and navies, but it doesn't get half as much attention as the question of love.

I see, by the way, that Anne has a good deal to contend with. Not only has she never had a beau, but she has never had any presents. I gather that Anne doesn't get the kind of clothes she wants. And she doesn't go to the kind of parties she wants to go to.

Anne, my child, I am sorry for you. I know how you feel. I, too, have never had a beau. I, too, have never received presents. I, too, have never been invited to the kind of parties I wanted to go to.

I suppose it's because I'm not built on the right lines. I'm not pretty enough. I'm not graceful enough. I'm not clever enough. I'm not rich enough. I'm not anything enough.

Anne, I'm going to know you a little better than I do now. I'm going to find out what you are like. I'm going to find out what you want. I'm going to find out what you need.

Then I'm going to write you a letter. I'm going to write you a letter that will help you. I'm going to write you a letter that will make you happy. I'm going to write you a letter that will make you forget all about beaux and presents and parties.

Anne, I'm going to write you a letter that will make you forget all about yourself.

Anne, I'm going to write you a letter that will make you forget all about me.

Anne, I'm going to write you a letter that will make you forget all about everything except the fact that you are a human being and that you have a duty to perform in the world.

IN the year 1916, when the air was filled with rumors of foreign invasion, there appeared suddenly off the coast of the United States the U-boat "Deutschland," the first submarine to cross the Atlantic Ocean. All of those who had read their voices in wonder and blind rage never before had a adventure genius of man could such a spectacle as the enemy water power feat possible. It is safe to say that few knew it was an American who conceived from the first boat, to which the torpedo was fastened by means of a cable.

Thus equipped, the "Turtle," under cover of night, drifted down to Sandy Hook, where the enemy ships were anchored. Favored by darkness, Sergeant Lee (for that was the name of the American who manned the "Turtle"), slipped up amongst the British "augie" and set to work to fasten his torpedo to her. Unfortunately, he struck one of the iron bands that bound the ship and was unable to attach the screw. Before he could find a softer spot he was swept away by the tide. By this time his movements were noticed by the English sailors, who came after him. Lee managed to escape and released the torpedo, which, exploding, shielded him behind a curtain of smoke and enabled him to dive out of sight.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SEVERAL bachelors have received wash notes lately in their laundry bundles, which goes to show that there is plenty of romance in the air.

Of course it's kind of discouraging to get your full dress shirt back with a love letter written on the cuff of it.

You can't very well use the shirt unless you grow a beard or wear an overcoat.

It's rather expensive to pay seven dollars for a piece of pleasure-getting paper.

You drop a line to her in English and she answers you with a bunch of laundry marks.

What girls who work in these laundries ought to buy white ink and correspond with you on your bundle.

Whether that or write to you on a collar that she took out of some other bundle.

Guy Fry proposed to a girl on a cuff and she accepted him on a handkerchief.

Then when they got married they sent out their wedding announcements on laundry lists.

(Copyright, 1925, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THEY'VE lived happily ever after and he's tickled to think that he didn't send his soiled clothes to a Chinaman.

ONE dame who worked in a laundry would always get jealous when her sweetheart's shirts came in with none of the buttons off.

SHE thought he had some other girl sewing them on.

SHE also got suspicious unless his socks had holes in them.

SHE finally sued him for breach of promise when she discovered a strange laundry mark on one of his collars.

IT'S getting so that a man not only has to be cautious about writing, he also has to be careful about who does his washing.

THERE'S one bachelor in New York who never sends any laundry out unless his lawyer looks it over.

THINGS are getting in an awful state when a man's attorney has to make a carbon copy of all his soiled clothes.

ROMANCE is a wonderful thing, but a bachelor can save himself a lot of legal entanglements by doing his own washing.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is the duty that lies nearest you. What you know to be a duty. The second duty will already become clear.

It is not a lucky word, this IMMORTALS: no good comes to him who has it often in his mouth.

There is an endless merit in a man's knowing when to stop.

Talk that does not end in any sort of action is better suppressed altogether.

It is the first of all problems for a man to find out what kind of work he is to do in this universe.

The great law of culture is: Let the scholar become all that he was created capable of being.

'Tis the vulgar eye, few things are wondered that are not distant.

Work a the grand cure of all the maladies and miseries that ever befell mankind.

For they are blest that have had much to mourn.

They have not oft misheard the prompter's cue,
Stammered and stumbled, and the wrong part played,
And life a Tragedy of Errors made. —William Watson.

WHY PEOPLE ARE RUDE

By Carolyn Lisberge
Lecturer and Writer on the Training and Education of Children.

"WHY do you suppose so many people act in a disagreeable way for no apparent reason?" queried a woman returning home from a day of shopping.

"I feel sure most of these people were treated rudely as children," I said. "We don't seem to encourage children to act pleasantly by treating them with courtesy, so why should they act pleasantly to others when they grow up?"

If you snarl at Johnny: "Shut that door!" do you think your manner makes him feel like acting pleasantly?

If you scold at Elizabeth when she comes into the house with her dress dirty, it doesn't encourage her to be pleasant, does it, especially since she does not understand she has done wrong.

From their earliest years children need to be spoken to and managed politely and respectfully, for imitativeness in the tiny child is the first quality that attracts our attention.

Like a mirror, he reflects in every action and in every word all that he sees and hears going on around him.

We must recognize that in his early days his words and actions are not an independent growth, with roots in his own consciousness, but are only the reflection of the words and actions of others.

Spend a few minutes on a sunny afternoon on a bench in a park where children are plenty, and you will be amazed at the way both mothers and nurses address the children. Harshly, they are ordered to "come along" "Didn't I tell you to pick up those toys at once?" "Oh, you can't ride your kiddie car to the street—do you think I have all day to drag after you?"

It is easily explainable that the child who spends his early imitative years in an atmosphere where no one puts any value on being pleasant-mannered, grows up to be the man with the "grouchy" attitude, or the woman without graciousness.

New Kind of Station in South Atlantic

By Foxy Grandpa

"CAN we tell when we cross the equator, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby as we sailed southward on the Atlantic.

I laughed as I replied.

"No, my boy, there's not even a buoy to indicate it."

"Oh," sighed Bobby, the disappointment showing clearly in his little face.

The captain told us when we crossed the line, and then we steamed on.

One afternoon as we lay on the deck of the small tramp steamer, Bobby lifted my glasses to his eyes and shouted:

"There's a white island over there. It shines like silver."

"The St. Paul's group," said the captain. "Would you like to stop and explore them?" asked Foxy Grandpa.

"Indeed I would," I answered.

So the captain steered toward the first island, dropped anchor and lowered a boat for us.

What a lark it was to go on that island where no one lived. There was hardly any animals — only insects, we discovered, and what they lived on was a mystery, for there were no trees or vegetation of any kind.

However, there were birds there. For, as we approached the island we saw that there were hundreds of pelicans and tropical birds resting on the coral shores.

We jumped out of the boat and waded toward shore and then we started exploring.

"Here's a bird's nest," shouted Bobby.

"Be careful not to frighten the owners," I whispered.

But it was too late, for as Bobby shouted two big birds darted out from the nest.

"That's too bad," said Bobby.

"We can have a look at the nest, at any rate," said I.

And with that we walked toward the nest to examine it.

"Why, here's a flying fish right by the nest, Foxy Grandpa," exclaimed Bobby.

Sure enough, there lying at the edge of the nest was a beautiful flying fish.

"Their supper, I suppose," I said. "Let's wait at a distance and perhaps we can see them eat it," suggested Bobby.

So we sat down for a moment hoping that the couple would come home. But they didn't. They were afraid of us. And then something happened. As we sat there waiting, Bunny turned my glasses and said:

"Look!"

Bunny was pointing to the ground near the nest, and there, walking along, as only one of his family can, was a big crab!

He ambled right straight up to the fish, took it in his claws and before our very eyes gobbled it up and then made for the water.

"Can you beat that?" I exclaimed.

"They're worse than that," said Bunny. "I've heard that they take the baby birds right out the nest. Strange things happen on these stations."

"Stations," said Bobby. "What do you mean?"

"I mean that this is a bird station, where they often stop in their long journeys up and down the ocean and eat—buns."

"Oh!" said Bobby. "Kind of like a coaling station for a ship."

A THREE-LETTER word meaning a food product. The only one that can be improved by sifting on it, also the only food product for which actors have an aversion.

2. Some like it hot, but few like it cold. It was the original broadcasting station. It is often worn in place of a watch charm across the vest. The word contains four letters.

3. A word of four letters meaning something that is with most men while they're at work and even when they come home from the office. Nobody wants one, yet are afraid of losing one.

4. It isn't square and it isn't round. Even when stuffed it's not found in museums. It's something up and something to hate. A word of five letters.

5. A word of five letters. Something a woman knows nothing about buying. Present in all poker games, political campaigns and other hard-shaking business deals. Can only be used once.

6. Has made more widowers than any other occupation. Calls for a lot of outdoor effort, but its final success depends on indoor vocal promotion work. It requires a larger vocabulary than solving a cross-word puzzle. Those who don't play it call it a game. Contains four letters.

7.—The only thing in the world that makes more noise than a radio. You can turn off a radio, but not this. Everybody who looks at it thinks it looks like them, but it's not a mirror. Only four letters.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The new year has already brought its important, and on the whole, encouraging developments:

First—The international value of the pound sterling has advanced extraordinarily impressively, to the highest point touched in almost ten years. It is now within a fraction of gold parity.

Second—Money rates in Wall Street have declined sharply, to as low as 3 per cent. for day-to-day loans.

Third—Gold exports are increasing to an unprecedented rate.

Fourth—The security markets have continued to upset all calculations of those who were cocksure of the first days of 1923 would bring a collapse in quotations.

Fifth—Wheat prices have given the lie to the hearts of our agricultural population by more than fulfilling most optimistic predictions.

Sixth—The increasing of the dividends of Topeka and Santa Fe directors and other companies have strengthened confidence that stocks are going to have an unusually prosperous year.

Seventh—Merger news is coming to the front and is considered to play an important part in the year's developments—particularly on the New York Stock Exchange.

Eighth—With the exception of a few reductions in textile wages in New England, labor conditions are encouraging, the increase of employment at certain centres being quite marked.

Ninth—Actual and prospective railroad ordering of equipment continues to exercise a helpful influence on both stock market and industrial sentiment.

Tenth—The scope of American trading to foreign borrowers suggests that our foreign trade should equal to very large proportions.

Notwithstanding all this, it cannot be said truthfully that general business has begun the year with any very impressive demonstration of activity. The rising trend in prices has failed to cause anything suggestive of a stampede among buyers. Obviously, merchants as well as producers of raw materials still feel that they will be able to fill their requirements promptly as need arises.

While this attitude is not conducive to high-hip-hurrah development, it really strengthens the solidity of the general position and foretells more orderly progress in coming months, whereas the stock market is often also described as a place where people now look for a relapse, although there is sharp difference of opinion as to the probable duration, if it occurs, is likely to continue.

Since current forecasts are all so unqualifiedly optimistic it may not seem to sound one word of warning concerning the granting of loans to European borrowers.

I understand that certain of our most influential banking interests are rejected ambitious overtures of foreign seekers of capital here at that this has been followed by negotiations with interests of lesser standing and conservatism. The Binary Investor, who naturally is not equipped to sift offerings down to the bottom for himself, should accordingly view offerings as brought out by houses of unimpeachable standing. The strongest European borrowers and would-be borrowers are, as a rule, approach very strong banking interests here with their proposition.

When a loan of any magnitude is sought out by second-rate concerns, the investor would do well to ask himself whether the likelihood is that the loan has been turned down by underwriters of the first rank.

* * *

The veteran Henry Clews, for more than sixty years a head of a stock exchange firm, used to post bulletins in his customers' room reading something like this, when the stock market was boiling too strongly:

"It is well to remember that the stock exchange will be open from 10 o'clock to 3 o'clock every day and every day thereafter, with stocks for sale."

This reminder may not be unwisely both for those who are being lured away by the bankers' investment in the closing months of 1924, and better earnings are expected for 1925. The street talks of $15 a share for Southern Railway and $12 for Pittsburgh.

The sensible attitude for the investor is to watch very closely the course of general business, with a view to reaching a conclusion as to whether it is going to catch up with the stock market speculation. Unless business activity expands rather substantially, it will be logical for the stock market to mark time on the ground it has covered so hurriedly.

On the other hand, should the expected improvement in business actually come along, then there is no telling how far the stock market might go in the direction of higher prices, particularly in view of the continued abundance of money at rates comparatively favorable.

WAKEFIELD FEARS ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE

For the first time in more than a generation, applications are being made in considerable numbers by insurance agents for earthquake policies. It is so long since this type of insurance has been written that many of the outlying agencies have had to telegraph home offices for rates, policy forms and similar information. Frederick S. Hartshorne of Wakefield placed $150,000 worth of earthquake insurance in one day in that town, the business coming unsolicited.

N. E. TEXTILE OUTLOOK BRIGHT

By FRANK H. MELOON, Finance Editor.

Textile operations have shown considerable expansion in New England during the past week, and the outlook today appears brighter than in many weeks past. Wage reductions have aided the expansion programs.

Shoe manufacturers generally are optimistic and look for orders to show further increases. There have been only a few wage reductions in the shoe trade.

Cheney Brothers report trade quiet, but announce optimism.

It is considered significant of the business trend in general that Massachusetts mills are today operating between 60 and 70 per cent. of capacity, contrasting with the low of 42 per cent. touched last July.

Doing his usual energetic "bit" to boom Boston, in an effort to get favorable action on the bill before the upper branch of Congress President Coonley of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has asked all members of Senate committee on post offices and roads to report these bills favorably.

Letters have also been sent by Preston B. Coonley to the New England Senators, the bills in large measure originating in the Boston postal district and the New England Chamber of Commerce, urging their active support of air mail measures waiting Senate action.

President Coolidge comes from the thriftiest section of the United States. Based on per capita savings deposits—$445—New England leads all other sections, according to a compilation by the American Bankers' Association. The nearest competitor is the Middle Atlantic group, with $305. New England, according to the compilation, has had the first place for the last twelve years.

Although the Southern States, where savings banking was late in developing, have had the lowest rate of savings, the group has made by far the greatest relative advance in the last twelve years. In 1912 per capita deposits were $13. Today they are $52, an increase of 185 per cent. The nearest approach to this increase is that of the Pacific group where, in 1912, the figure was $191 compared with $340 in 1924, a gain of 137 per cent.

The compilation shows:

	Per Capita Savings Deposits of		Percent Increase
	1912	1924
New England	$250	$445	80.8
Middle Atlantic	117	305	160.6
Southern	13	52	300.0
Pacific States	191	340	137.6
West Central	107	240	124.2

RAIL BUYING SPECULATIVE

Stock market statisticians take the view that the present heavy buying of rail issues is more for prospects of appreciation than for current income return, and therefore being stocks with indications of eventually higher dividends.

Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific, two old dividend payers, were cited as likely to yield more than Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Railway, neither of which has long and unbroken dividends records.

Atlantic Coast Line, which paid only $8 last year, is talking about one of Union Pacific because it has been earning more per share for several years, it is said, while New York Central is selling above Atchison on prospects of another dividend increase.

St. Louis San Francisco earned $12 a share last year, Southern railway about $11.50 or more and Baltimore & Ohio between $9 and $10. These three roads showed improvement in the closing months of 1924, and better earnings are expected for 1925. The street talks of $15 a share for Southern Railway and Frisco this year.

LAWSON GETS REVENGE ON C. F. KING

ordered for her—silently, solemnly. Then they all filed out."

In his capacity as financial adviser and publisher of King's Financial Bulletin, which was an investor's guide in a sense, it was inevitable that King ultimately should do some one or more of the stocks that Lawson was manipulating.

Warns of Lawson

The first warning against Lawson's nefarious game a month before the Consolidated launched his famed and disastrous Trinity campaign. When the campaign was at its height, Lawson was under way. King issued as follows:

"If I did not own any Trinity stock I would not buy any.

"If I did own any Trinity stock, I would sell it."

Then, King declared, Lawson turned and promised his intimates that the time would come when he could square with me for daring to question him and his methods.

"It was not, however, until a warning of mine stopped one of his campaigns in which he had anticipated a gigantic 'killing' that he set his forces at work to drive me out of business, stop my influence with clients in various parts of New England to whom he delivered securities, answered letters and the like.

At about the time of the Coakley, Coakley & Sherman advertisement, King began to hear stories reflecting on the integrity of ex-Governor Moses and placing him in the role of a Judas.

At that moment King had no suspicion that Tom Lawson might be back of the changes in Moses. It never occurred to him, however, that Moses was advising customers that they had better go to King and, through him, clear what were pressed for money, ask for the money back on their securities.

Traitor Discovered

One day, out of a clear sky, came the information to King that Moses had been in conference with Thomas W. Lawson. Again came a second report—this time of a midnight visit to Lawson's home at No. 1 Chateaugate Road.

Last the Lawson plot go deeper, King "went to the mat" with the man he had dragged out of the gutter.

another that he be given a chance to come back.

Moses Turns Judas

This was a man who once had been Governor of South Carolina.

Out of pity, Cardenio King promised that he would set ex-Governor Moses back again in the right road. Moses' ambition was to write a history of South Carolina during the reconstruction period when he was its chief executive.

The broken man, cured of the drug habit, or professedly cured, was outfitted and paid by King and later installed in King's office in the Journal building, Newspaper Row, and told he would be cared for while he wrote and served in a clerical capacity.

A year later the roots of treachery had taken firm hold in this wreck of a man.

He came to King and on the plea that the synagogue was bad, asked that he might be relieved from writing for a time and be made a messenger or engaged in some similar light but responsible capacity.

The request was honored and he was installed as messenger and entrusted with the duty of conferring with clients in various parts of New England to whom he delivered securities, answered letters and the like.

RABBI EPSTEIN DENIES SLAP AT FLOCK

Rabbi Louis M. Epstein, who recently resigned as head of the Congregation Beth Hamidrash Hagadol, of Roxbury, makes the following statement:

"It would be furthest from my mind to charge the Congregation Beth Hamidrash Hagadol with 'dollar religion.' I have never made any such statement and I have not authorized anyone to interpret my resignation from that institution in that light. I have been the Rabbi of the congregation for close to seven years and I have always appreciated the unselfish and generous manner in which the membership supported the institution. Its ideals are high, its service most effective in the cause of traditional Judaism.

I stated my resignation inevitable, though I regret it and so does the congregation. My resignation, however, does not imply any rebuke against any element in the congregation. If I do not agree with the administration on certain matters concerning the educational work of the congregation, I contend and have no desire to be blind to the devoted service of the administration to the congregation's welfare and their good intentions for the promotion of the Hebraic ideals of Judaism. There is positively no scandal and no ill-feeling in my resignation."

NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF NORTON OIL, DOUGLAS COPPER OR KING-CROWTHER STOCK

All persons who have had dealings with any of the above stocks are requested to write to the undersigned, stating the amount and cost of their shares, the person to whom their shares were paid, how they were purchased, and particularly in the United States mail in any way entered into the transaction and

Oakley, Coakley & Sherman,
Counsellors-at-Law,
45 Pemberton Square, Boston.
The foregoing was communicated to the undersigned, of course, and King innocently charged that Tom Lawson was behind the advertisement using the names of the brothers Coakley and Tom Coakley, the former of whom is married and the latter dead for several years.

"The scheme," declared King, "is to cause investors to besiege my office, crying for a return of my money, hoping thereby to embarrass me or to prevent me from getting more of the fine securities the companies named.

The reference to the United States mail was particularly deadly to point. The public knows a fraud order from the Post Office is the only way of stopping swindlers from pursuing their practice."

Tragedy Enters Lists

King replied in large type and hastily explanatory to this advertisement, commenting that it proved conclusively he was right in his original announcement that "the hand of Judas Lawson is no stranger to any financial trick, but to be outstripped by some of the sharpers and schemers in the United States."

And now tragedy crept into the story. Just as alleged card players were cutting for the deal at No. 159 Webster avenue in Cambridge, Police Sergeant La Marche and a squad walked in. None persons were arrested for being present where gaming implements were found on the Lord's Day.

Higher Telephone Rates?

You Owe It to Yourself to Follow Closely the Proceedings Before the Department of Public Utilities

The telephone company's request for permission to increase its rates in Massachusetts approximately 23 per cent. is now before the Department of Public Utilities and 124 towns and cities have joined with the city of Boston in asking, "Why?"

It is up to the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company to answer that question, and with mayors, selectmen, corporation counsel and city solicitors on hand in behalf of the subscriber, sensible folk will adopt the attitude of the gentleman from Missouri and wait to be shown.

The Statewide demonstration of interest in this question of telephone necessities and telephone rates is the best possible assurance of a square deal, square to the telephone company and square to those who support it.

The inquiry begins at 10 a. m. on Monday, February 9. The Department expects to give four days a week to it. Unless there is a multiplicity of cross-examiners the company expects to have its case completed in twenty days.

YOU are on the jury. You owe it to yourself to follow the proceedings closely and weigh it judicially.

Here is a big public question which will be settled in the open, with all New England looking on.

Boston Has Best in World

No Need to Visit New York or Anywhere Else for Something "Bigger and Better"

The news columns inform us that a prominent Boston business man of wealth is about to depart for New York, there to purchase for his fiancee, "the biggest diamond on Fifth avenue." The fact that he is going to buy a large gem interests us only slightly. That he will go to New York to buy the stone is much more important and should be of far greater interest to Boston people.

Here is another instance of belief in the popular fallacy that in New York it is possible to buy bigger and better things than one can get in Boston. This was true once—a long time ago. Today you can spend your money in Boston for just as beautiful things as you can purchase in New York or, in fact, anywhere else in the world. This business man should understand that in Boston he can buy from any one of several diamond merchants and jewelers of integrity and repute just as fine a stone and just as large a stone as he will get in New York.

A shopping trip to New York is no longer "the smart thing." Buy your merchandise, whatever it is, at home and you will be just as "smart" and display far more wisdom.

Air Force Vital to Safety

Trusting to Genius Rather Than Preparedness Is Absurd

General Robert L. Bullard is quoted as saying that we need fear no air attack, inasmuch as our spontaneous genius would straightway devise an antidote.

This is a remarkable expression from an officer of such distinguished ability and service as General Bullard.

It would avail great cities little after having been demolished by explosives and murdered by poisonous gases to have our genius come to the rescue a day or so after the event.

The World War is full of instances where great devastation was wrought from the air, even with all the defensive energies the combined genius of the allies could devise.

If there had been no defence whatever the ghastly totals would have mounted much higher.

The same attitude toward every branch of the national defence would precipitate us into a state of national palsy, into a state of helplessness which would square with the wildest dream of extreme pacifism.

The absurdity of trusting to genius rather than to preparedness in army and navy matters is obvious, but it is still more so in the case of an air force.

A certain period of time is needed to transport armies over seas, and their progress may be impeded to some degree by guerrilla defence, and a hostile navy can shoot only a few miles.

It can destroy cities upon the seaboard, but it cannot destroy national life beyond its gun range.

In the case of an air attack, distance is no protection. The enemy can arrive without warning, and its scope of action is limited only by its flying radius. It can cover thousands of miles, and with its constantly augmented power the day is near when vast areas would be its prey.

Moreover, the energies of other nations now bent on air forces warn us that in the next conflict the sky will be the vast frontier from which attacks will be launched by planes, controlled by radio, dealing their merciless blows upon whole populations.

There will be no non-combatants, and flags of truce will be as worthless as Autumn leaves, for radio-controlled airplane bombers will have no eyes to see, no scruples to observe.

Every branch of the national defence is indispensable, but, if we were by some hard rule restricted to one single branch, we would choose the air force as super-indispensable.

In all lines of human activity men unconsciously exalt the line in which they serve to the disadvantage of other lines, and in the game of war the air service has felt the whip of opposition from both the army and the navy.

It is natural for General Bullard to repose great faith in the gallant army with which he served with such ability throughout a long and distinguished career, but it is impossible to follow the incredible philosophy implied in the aforesaid quotation, and hard to understand the frame of mind which brought it forth.

If We Want It, Yes

But Do We Want That Kind of Money?

This government "sternly" informs England that we demand a part of the annuities to be paid by Germany under the Dawes Plan. Whether we get them or not remains to be seen. This much is certain, our British and other European friends will not find in Calvin Coolidge any mushy sentimentalist, or Anglo-maniac, shivering at the condescension of a Balfour or a Lord Tomnoddy.

Inasmuch as this country supplied millions to set the German wheels turning, and as we spent at least a hundred billions one way and another, not counting graft, on the war, it would seem that we might have some share in the plunder—if we are willing to accept it.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE fool hath said in her heart, "Alas, men no longer sigh for a Sweet Home Life! For every man hath a 'going foot' and a roving heart, and not one of them yearneth to be a Fireside Companion!"

But, I say unto you, my daughter, every bachelor hath visions of the Perfect Home, wherein he shall some day rule as monarch. Yea, every single-footer dreameth of that beautiful haven!

Helen Rowland

Where a wife always awaiteth him in perpetual good-humor, and the roast always remain-th hot and the grapefruit cool, until he chooseth to GET there.

Where a cigar stub graceth every table, and a cast-off hat or a forgotten newspaper adorneth every chair.

Where NO one is listening for his latch-key—and EVERYONE is looking for him, his approval, or his collar button.

Where his morning moodiness is regarded as a matter of course—and his evening absence as a matter of business.

Where he may track muddy boots and dripping golf-bags over priceless Persian rugs, and throw his wet raincoat over the couch, without reproof.

Where the "gang" may drop in at midnight, and turn on the radio and leave sticky tumblers all over the dining-room table, and where the unexpected guest is as welcome as the morning newspaper.

Where the housecleaning is a thing of magic, and an unseen fairy godmother transformeth his linen from soiled wads upon the floor into a chiffonier full of pristine shirts and snowy collars.

Where Saturday is always a "day off," and Sunday a day of rest and NOT of odd chores, boredom and family dissensions.

Where his razor, his tobacco and his privacy are considered sacred, and he may clean his gun upon the dining-room table, with his wife's pet dust-rag.

Where the newspaper and his favorite arm-chair are not community comforts, but masculine monopolies.

Where his pockets are never rifled and his spirits never ruffled, and where there are no QUESTIONS asked, no arguments, no regular hours, no misunderstandings—and no by-laws.

Yea, verily, every lone man dreameth blissfully of his IDEAL HOME, wherein he shall enjoy all the freedom of a bachelor-flat, all the service of an hotel, all the comforts of a family bungalow, and all the abandon of a club. Oh, Hallejujah!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SOME may sing of Summer time, some of Autumn's glow, some set April days in rhyme; but for me —the snow! All the woods and fields is brown, all the song-birds fled, snow-flakes swirling, whirling down. Summer's sweetness aped. Sullen skies where clouds hang low; silent, ice-locked streams; but the crackling wood-fire's glow bright as sunlight gleams. Slumber days for flowers climb, dreaming made; here beside the fire dwell the dancers, Light and Shade, while the flames leap higher. Yet, though clouded skies are gray, all within is cheer for the wood-fire charms away griefs of failing year. Clouds pass faster, sailing low, gales go screeching by; thicker, quicker falls the snow as the bright sparks fly. Winter, with his frosty crown, rules a little time while the snow comes drifting down and the flame-fed fire with kindness. Her chil-

EVERY CHILD SHO LEARN MUSIC

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EVERY parent should teach a child to play some sort of an instrument.

Learning music has a refining influence upon character. It does not always make a man pure, but it has a tendency to increase self-control, patience, poise. These are qualities that every man desires.

Particularly, it is valuable for a girl to learn the piano or the harp.

"Have you ever noticed," someone asks, "that whenever Belasco wants a hero 'vamped' by a lady at a baby grand piano shaded by a heroine, the children of Hamlin, the poor male cannot resist the pest to kiss the hands trailing over the keys, but can never look so charming as when she is seated at a grand, and in no time they are in the love scene?

What is true of the piano is still truer of the harp. Every woman looks angelic when she is playing it, no matter what her personal attractions.

"I think if I had a small daughter," says a mother, "and she showed any inclination in that direction, the first buy her a little Irish harp which she could learn on, and is not expensive, and when about her sixteenth year I would present her with a full-grown harp."

Every child should be taught to play something, and choosing what she will play she should be allowed to follow her own inclinations. One does much better work when one's fancy than in going against it.

Many parents think their children are musical when they have simply chosen wrong.

It has been said: "To be brought up with books makes one want to be a part of it, to really read them; besides just listen."

It is the parent's duty not only to get his children acquainted, by the piano player and the phonograph, with good music, but by assisting him in producing it.

STANDARDIZING AND WOMEN

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

SPECULATION, based on the effects producable by manipulation of the chromosomes, those mysterious elements in the living cell which are supposed to contain the physical basis of transmission by heredity, has led to the suggestion that it may become possible to standardize the human race!

Such standardization is to be understood in the physical sense—that is to say the members of each sex would all resemble one another in stature, in color of skin, hair and eyes, and so on.

How far their intellectual qualities would be affected is another question, but it would seem that, according to "the mechanistic conception of life," a standardization of minds should also follow.

Women are sincerely interested in the amelioration of the human race seem to find this standardizing proposition admirable and its promised results desirable even when confined to giving the same bodily appearance and qualities to everybody!

If every man was a Hercules there would be no Hercules. If every woman was a Venus there would be no Venus. One would hear no more a buzz of admiring comment when some celebrated beauty appeared in a drawing-room or on the stage, for there would be no celebrated beauties.

Where all were equally beautiful no notable beauty could exist.

What a flat, uninteresting, uninspiring world this would be if everybody looked like everybody else!

A slight suggestion of the effect may be found in what has already been accomplished by the spreading over all the continents and among all progressive peoples of a nearly standardized form of style of dress, together with standardized ways of cooking, eating and living.

Only those who began to travel nearly a generation ago can understand what the world has lost in picturesqueness and philosophic interest by this Procrustean process.

Ostensibly some of its inhabitants have gained something by losing their individuality, but a philosopher may doubt the reality of the gain.

ONCE-OVERS

PARENTS SHOULD TEACH CHILDREN TO SAVE OWN WAY

"We have decided to give along and have a good time we do not get a large sum of money together. grown up and we have given them the education that it possible for them to make their own way," correctives of practically all pleasure under the circumstances leave the results of our self-denial to them!"

The speaker was a woman who gets a lot of enjoyment and no doubt does her husband.

They have a fair income, sufficient to enable them to maintain their position among their friends.

Their children know that they will have to make their own way, and, consequently, are not anticipating "making" rich folks die, when they will get a little "stake."

They have an incentive to work, to be self-reliant, to plan for their own future, for they know that success comes and with it ease and comfort.

And life is still full of interest to those parents who have to develop character and stamina in their children and an intelligent and well-rounded life to the last.

What Women Teach
Wall Street's Maelstrom
He's Really President
The Kansas Mr. Davis

Current Events

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1925, by Star Co.

H. G. WELLS worries about the American system of public school education. He is much afraid that our manhood will be damaged because our school boys are educated largely by women, whereas British boys are educated by men.

It is kind of Mr. Wells to worry, but he is wasting time and energy in this case.

IF HE WILL look into his own book of history, at one of his ancestors with the big mouth, low forehead and heavy brow, he will find that human beings have changed. And he ought to know that they have changed, thanks to the fact that men have been educated by their MOTHERS.

WOMEN HAVE educated, not only the boys, but the men, gradually taking the brutality out of them. And that's what they need.

On the lap of his mother, and at her knee, man has been changed from the troglodyte, that used to crack his neighbor's right bone to get at the marrow, to our present imitation of civilization.

WOMEN CAN teach the school boy justice, kindness, courage, patience and consideration.

What other manly characteristics [illegible] the man teach?

THE ONLY teacher that Abraham Lincoln ever had was a woman, his stepmother. She was pretty well. The eight years for a mother, and the 30th woman for a teacher, will turn out men sufficiently manly. Wells will learn from Lincoln's history.

WHEAT WENT to a new high price again yesterday. Its upward climb was not merely a "temporary feature of the Coolidge campaign."

Conservative gentlemen, powerful in politics, welcome the other wheat prices. Radicalized, long farmers goes DOWN while wheat goes UP.

Why and by, however, of course, something will happen. Then wheat will come down and radicalism will go up again.

STOCKS WERE cheerful yesterday also. The predicted drop is still missing.

If you have good nerves, you will last a long while in Wall street's maelstrom of finance.

Last night New York's bankers were a dinner in honor of George F. Baker. That gentleman, who is the third or fourth, possibly the second, richest man in the world, is hard at work and eighty-five years old, but it takes strength to keep going in that game.

Jay Gould, E. H. Harriman and dozens of others have died young because they got rich very fast.

IN KANSAS, there is excitement about Governor Davis, accused of selling pardons and paroles to prisoners. The Governor's son, accused with him, confessed to accepting twelve hundred and fifty dollars as a bribe, after detectives trapped and caught him.

GOVERNOR DAVIS, who now leaves the Governorship, has an unusual record in the way of pardons, including murderers, bank thieves and others. The charge is made by the local officials that such pardons were bought and paid for. Proof, of course, has not been given.

THIS INTERESTS people outside of Kansas. You will remember that Governor Davis was a very prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination for President last time. He ran ahead of John W. Davis by fifty ballots.

You realize how well our aristocracy works, when you see that instead of Mr. Davis who will be arrested charged with [illegible]
